

John Henderson Mason

(1784-1863)

By Jerry Long, Owensboro, Ky., 1986

John Henderson Mason was born 24 November 1784 in Botetourt County, Virginia, the oldest of ten children of Joseph Mason and Jane Henderson. He was named for his grandfather Mason and his mother's surname. He signed his name "John H. Mason" and in official records usually appeared in that form. At the age of sixteen he came with his parents to Breckinridge County, Ky., where he came of age.

In 1806 at the age of 21, John H. Mason first appeared in the tax records of Breckinridge County, Ky. two years later, in 1808, he is not listed in the Breckinridge County tax records. In that year he probably was residing in the neighboring county of Ohio, on 26 September of that year he married Elizabeth Jackson in Ohio County. The marriage rites were performed by William Anderson. John was then age 23 and Elizabeth 17.

Elizabeth Rhoades Jackson was the daughter of Christopher Jackson and Elizabeth Rhoades (note - middle name of Elizabeth Jackson Mason from death certificate of her daughter, Maggie Mason Harris, 1921, Union County, Ky.). A native of Ohio County, Ky., she was born near Hartford on 20 December 1790. Her family lived about nine miles northeast of Hartford, along the Old Hartford and Bardstown road, in the Falls of Rough area, where the present counties of Ohio, Breckinridge and Grayson meet,

The Jacksons were neighbors of Samuel Crawford, whose wife Janet Mason Crawford was an aunt of John Henderson Mason. Most likely it was while visiting his Crawford relatives in Ohio County that John H. Mason met and courted Elizabeth Jackson. Elizabeth's uncle, George Jackson, had married Sarah Crawford (in 1802), daughter of Samuel and Janet Mason Crawford, and a first cousin of John H. Mason. In 1815 Gabriel Jackson, Elizabeth's brother, was married to Polly Pate, a granddaughter of Samuel and Janet Mason Crawford.

Following his marriage John H. Mason returned to Breckinridge County. In 1809 he was enumerated by the tax collector in Breckinridge County. By the summer of 1810 he was residing near his father-in-law, Christopher Jackson, in Ohio County. He appears in the 1810 federal census of Ohio County, enumerated three households from the family of Christopher Jackson. Three individuals were listed as residing in the household of John H. Mason, one male 16-26, one female 16-26, and one female 0-10, they would have been John, wife Elizabeth, and oldest child Elvira. Also listed in the 1810 Ohio County census was John's brother, James Mason, who was then single.

In 1811 John H. Mason once again returned to Breckinridge County, and continued to reside there through 1814. In 1815 John and brother, James, went to Henderson County, Ky., located about 40 miles west of the Mason home in the Pisgah neighborhood of Breckinridge County. Neither brother would return to Breckinridge County to live.

John H. Mason had never purchased land in Breckinridge County, and during the years he was there most likely lived on the plantation of his father. His one-ninth share of his father, Joseph Mason's 1500 acre estate on Tar Spring Fork of Clover Creek in Breckinridge County, he sold to his brother, William Mason (Breckinridge County deed book G, page 331, 3 December 1825).

John H. Mason stayed in Henderson County for about three years, he appears in the 1815, 1816 and 1817 tax lists of that county. Leaving Henderson County he took his family back to his wife's native county of Ohio. His brother, James, stayed in Henderson County and about five years later moved south into Union County, Ky. which became his home for the remainder of his life.

Ohio County, Ky. was the home of John Henderson and Elizabeth Jackson Mason for most of their married life, they resided continuously there for over 40 years. They are listed in the 1820, 1830, 1840 and 1850 Federal Censuses of Ohio County. During that time they resided both in Hartford, the county seat of Ohio County, and on farms located a few miles outside of Hartford. At the time of the 1820 and 1850 censuses they were living in Hartford.

John H. Mason made his living farming. Christopher and Catherine Jackson sold to their daughter, Elizabeth Mason, a 228 acre farm in Ohio County on 22 October 1829 (Ohio County deed book F, page 150). The tract was on Halls Creek, a tributary of the Rough River, about five miles northeast of Hartford. John and Elizabeth owned this farm for six years and on 4 April 1836 sold it to David L. Miller for $400 (Ohio County deed book G, page 186). On 14 August 1838 they purchased a 70 acre farm in the Sulphur Springs neighborhood, for $450, from Richard P. and Margaret Nall (Ohio County deed book H, page 54). This farm they would own for the next 22 years. In 1860 on 28 August they sold the 70 acre tract to Henry Armendt for $600 (Ohio County deed book R, page 491).

The house in which John H. Mason resided in Ohio County, Ky. during the years of 1838-1860, was the site of the birth of Richard Parks Bland, possibly the most illustrious native son of Ohio County, Ky. "Silver Dick" Bland was born on 19 August 1835 near the present site of Dundee (formerly known as Hines' Mill) in Ohio County. In the last quarter of the 19th century Bland was a nationally known political figure, serving 25 years in the U.S. Congress. Bland's Ohio County, Ky. background was referenced in the book, An American Commoner: The Life and Times of Richard Parks Bland, by William Vincent Byars (St. Louis, C. Simpson, Publisher, 1900). On page 274 of this book is the following paragraph (part of an interview with Bland's uncle, Frank Nall, of Ohio County, Ky., in the spring of 1900):

"DO you remember where Mr. Bland was born?" "Yes. The place is about a mile above the mill. Mr. Armendt lives there now. There were three little places there. My father owned all of them. You know we had no frame or brick houses then. This was a neat log house, and my recollection is that it had one room, twenty feet square. What we would call a nice hewed-log house. It had a white ash floor, and then there was a little porch between that and what was called the kitchen. It had a loft room above. That was the size of the house. After Mr. Bland moved away from there I think a man by the name of Mason became the purchaser, and he lived in the same house, for a good many years. When he died the place fell into the hands of Mr. Armendt."

The Mr. Mason referred to was John Henderson Mason. The house & farm, where Richard Parks Bland was born in 1835, was owned by his grandfather, Richard P. Nall. On 14 August 1838 Richard P. Nall & his wife Margaret sold to Elizabeth Mason [wife of John H. Mason] 70 acres for $450 (Ohio County, Ky. deed book H, p.54). John H. Mason & his wife Elizabeth on 28 August 1860 sold the same 70 acres for $600 to Henry F. Armendt (deed book R, p.494). A native of Germany, Armendt was an architect, and was still living on the same farm near Dundee in 1900. Members of the Armendt family were buried in the Hines Cemetery, located on top of a hill in front of the Dundee School building.

John H. Mason and Elizabeth Jackson were the parents of thirteen children, two died in infancy, and two in childhood, one of whom was a son named Thompson, who died at the age of nine while attending school (source: Sketch of the Jackson Family in America, by Clayton Keith, Pike County, Mo., News Power Print, 1916, Louisiana, Missouri, 55 pp). Nine of their children were reared to adulthood, they were:

Elvira E	born	1809
Jane Henderson	born	15 Jan 1811
Christopher Jackson	born	5 May 1813
Joseph Allen	born	24 Jan 1814
James Madison	born	25 Mar 1815
Catherine Ann	born	24 May 1819
Henry W.	born	13 Apr 1824
Mary Providence	born	22 Jul 1827
Margaret Elizabeth	born	28 Oct 1832

The three youngest children were born in Ohio County. There is no conclusive proof of where the older children were born, in the early years after John and Elizabeth's marriage they resided at various times in Ohio, Breckinridge and Henderson counties. Though some of the older children later reported in official records they were born in Ohio County, county tax records suggest that several of them were probably born in Breckinridge County, and one (James) may have been born in Henderson County.

During the year of 1860 John H. Mason left Ohio County and went to live in Hancock County, Ky., at the home of his son, James Mason. John spent the last three years of his life there. John and Elizabeth do not appear in either the 1860 Ohio or Hancock County censuses, The reason for this could be that they moved during the summer of that year, at the same time the census taker was making his rounds and missed him in both places. On the 28 August of 1860, when they sold their farm in Ohio County, they must have been in Hancock County because the deed was delivered to the Hancock County Clerk, James E Stone, who certified it and had it delivered to Hartford in Ohio County where it was recorded. As written the deed identifies John H. Mason and wife Elizabeth as being residents of Ohio County, which along with the fact the deed was produced in Hancock County suggests they had very recently moved.

When John H. Mason went to Hancock County only one of his children, Jane Ellis, was still living in Ohio County. Of his other children, James was living in Hancock County, Elvira Duke in Daviess County, Joseph, Mary Houston and Mag Harris in Union County, Jackson in Spencer County, Indiana and Catherine Chapman in Missouri, Also living in Hancock County at that time were two of John's brothers, William and Hopkins Mason, daughter-in-law, Sarah Hamilton Mason, nieces and nephews, Sam, Elizabeth, Margaret, James and Jane Mason, children of Hopkins Mason, and William, Joe and Margaret Mason, children of Henderson Mason; three first cousins, Elizabeth Henderson Mason, Isabelle Henderson Mason and William Henderson; and also many cousins who were descendants of his aunts and uncles, William Henderson and Mary McClure, and Samuel Crawford and Janet Mason.

John Henderson Mason died 2 September 1863 in Hancock County, Ky., at the age of 78. He was buried on the farm of his son, James Mason, in a family cemetery known as the Mason-Blincoe Cemetery. The cemetery is located four miles east of Lewisport, off of the Muddy Cut Road, on the farm presently owned by Charles Allen Taylor.

John's widow, Elizabeth Jackson Mason, died near Morganfield, Ky. in Union County, at the home of her son, Joseph A. Mason, on 17 December 1865, three days before her 75th birthday. She was buried in a family cemetery on her son, Joseph Mason's farm, today the cemetery is referred to both as the Waller and Mason Cemetery, The site is three miles west of Morganfield, on the north side of Highway 360, opposite a pond on the south side of the highway. The Joseph Mason farm is presently owned by a great-granddaughter, Mary Elizabeth Mason Collins, who resides in Florida. The cemetery has virtually been destroyed, none of the monuments are still standing, reportedly some of the monuments were cut up and used as steps to the Nace Waller home nearby. At least two Mason monuments stood in the cemetery at one time: "Zabith Mason, wife of John, born December 20, 1790, died December 17, 1865" and "Joseph Mason, born January 24, 1814, died May 1, 1869" (from an earlier listing of the cemetery by Peyton Heady of Morganfield, Ky.). After Joseph A. Mason's wife died in 1906, his remains were removed from the cemetery and reburied in Morganfield at the Masonic Cemetery, a new monument was erected on his grave but his original one was left at the old cemetery. Descendants of Joseph do not now know if his mother, Elizabeth Jackson Mason, was also moved or left at the old Waller-Mason Cemetery, she does not have a monument in the Masonic Cemetery in Morganfield where three of her children are buried.

Elvira E. Mason Duke (1809-1861)

Elvira E. Mason, the oldest child of John Henderson Mason and Elizabeth Jackson, was born in 1809. Her father in that year is listed as paying taxes in Breckinridge County, Ky. On June 4, 1831 she married John W. Duke in Ohio County, Ky.

John W. Duke was born about 1809, the oldest of twelve children of Washington Duke and Elizabeth Vaught, His father was born August 11, 1786 near Blue Ridge, Virginia, and his mother also a native of Virginia was born February 28, 1790. Soon after marrying Washington Duke moved to Tennessee, residing in Rutherford County before moving to Ohio County, Ky. in 1828. Washington Duke died in Ohio County on May 8, 1863 and his wife on May 19, 1871. They lived a short distance north of Hartford, and are buried in the Duke Cemetery, located north of the Combs Bridge Road, about 1.3 mile west of Highway 69. It is on the Bert Combs farm which is owned by J. B. Eskridge. John W. Duke's brothers and sisters were: William, Mary wife of Jonathan L. Condict, James, Washington, Ephraim, Arena Eleanor wife of Julius C. Bean, Henderson, Isaac N., Madison V., Robert and Stephen C. Duke.

John W. Duke in early manhood died, he was about 25 years of age. His death was between the dates of January 16, 1834, when he purchased 39½ acres from Joseph Smith, and February 19, 1835, when a suit of foreclosure was filed in the Ohio County Circuit Court seeking payment due on the same land (suit file #467E). According to the suit his only heirs were his widow, Elvira, and an infant daughter, Mary Jane. Mary Jane Duke had been born on August 21, 1834, after the death of her father she was put under the guardianship of her grandfather, John H. Mason. A second child born to the union of John W. Duke and Elvira Mason died in infancy between the years of 1831 and 1834.

Following the death of her husband, Elvira Mason Duke, never remarried and remained a widow for the last twenty-six years of her life. In 1850 she and her daughter, Mary Jane, were residing with her uncle, Christopher D. Jackson (1797-1884) on his farm near Masonville in Daviess County, Ky. In December 1827 he had moved to the Masonville area from Ohio County, Ky. The History of Daviess County Kentucky (Inter-State Publishing Co., Chicago, 1883, pp126-127) stated that "Mr. Jackson is the largest landholder in the county and the wealthiest man in the county". His wife, Camilla L. Shanks Jackson died in 1837 leaving four small children, he never remarried and his niece, Elvira Duke, may have lived with his family and helped care for his children.

On December 21, 1854 Elvira Mason Duke's daughter, Mary Jane Duke, married Alexander Hamilton Ayer in Daviess County. After their marriage they made their home near his parents just across the Daviess County line in McLean County near Glenville, Elvira Duke lived with her daughter and on January 15, 1861 she died at the age of 51. She was buried in the Ayer Cemetery on the Nalley farms on Highway 140 in McLean County. She was survived by her daughter and three grandchildren.

Mary Jane Duke's husband Alexander H. Ayer, the son of A.O. (Alexander Outlaw) Ayer and Esther Durham Johnson, was born May 2, 1834. His father was a noted pioneer doctor who came to Daviess County in 1834, his residence twenty miles south of Owensboro was in the part of Daviess County that was formed into the new county of McLean on May 8, 1854. Because of his role in the early history of Daviess County the following biography of Dr. A. O. Ayer was published in the 1883 History of Daviess County, Kentucky (pp431-432):

Dr. A.O. Ayer was born in 1804; died in 1876. He was a native of Kingston, Tenn., and married Esther Durham Johnson, near Knoxville. He moved to Kentucky in 1834. The years of his Kentucky life began with the early history of Owensboro, and extended through the eventful periods of prosperous slave times, disastrous war, and decline of public and private enterprise after the war. He was one of four physicians who in the early history of this part of Kentucky practiced in the large stretch of country now embracing the counties of Ohio, Muhlenburg, McLean, Daviess and part of Henderson counties, He came from Kingston by water, in the latter part of the winter of 1834, thus traversing almost the full length of the Tennessee River, and a large part of the Ohio, which was obstructed to a great extent by floating ice. The trip occupied several weeks, as it was made on a boat made by unskilled hands. One boat bearing his family and slaves, and a raft with stock, household, and farm articles, brought them safe to the new country. There was no place near here where they could get the necessary conveniences of every-day life, so they brought all they could with them. The now wealthy town of Henderson, when they floated past it, was known as the landing of "Red Banks", and the county seat of Daviess, as "Yellow Banks". The latter landing was found to be a marshy level, with a few houses on the bank of the river. Here they disembarked, and after a survey of the surrounding country, they concluded to move further into the interior, to the hills, where there was better water, and less chills and fever. Here, within twenty miles of Owensboro, a plantation was cleared up, and after a few years a comfortable and pleasant home was established. His farm was for years one of the places for holding Daviess County elections, under the old dispensation of three days' voting. The different musters were held here also, and magistrate meetings. Dr. Ayers home was known far and near for open-hearted hospitality and free welcome to all. During the war, though his four sons were all rebels, he was conservative. He lived to see the sad effects of the war, in this part of Kentucky, all around him. The spirit of thrift seemed to have departed from that part of the country, and the condemned marshy land around Yellow Banks came to be the desirable part of the country. McLean was made, and the elections changed to Calhoun, its county seat. The plantation of slavery times came to be the quiet home of an invalid man, retired from active life. He ended his days in peace with God and man, in 1876, leaving a wife and six children, four sons and two daughters.

Dr. Alexander Outlaw Ayer, born January 16, 1805 died June 20, 1876, and his wife, Esther D. Johnson Ayer, born April 29, 1806 died November 8, 1884, are buried in the Ayer Cemetery in McLean County.

The family of Alexander Hamilton Ayer appeared in the 1860, 1870, 1880 and 1900 censuses of McLean County, Ky. On July 2, 1873 Mary Jane Duke Ayer died, at the age of 38 years. She was buried in the Ayer Cemetery near her mother. She was survived by her husband and eight children, ranging, in ages from 17 to 5.

Alexander H. Ayer married a second time to Sally W. Johnson, on Christmas day of 1877. No children were born to this marriage. He died at his home at Buel on April 19, 1906 and was buried at the Glenville Methodist Church in Daviess County, near Union Hill and the McLean County line. His second wife was also buried there, she was born September 19, 1837 and died March 1, 1896. The following notice of A. H. Ayer's death appeared in the Owensboro newspaper:

Jane Henderson Mason Ellis (1811-1882)

Jane Henderson Mason, daughter of John Henderson Mason and Elizabeth Jackson, was born January 15, 1811. She was born in Breckinridge County, Ky.; her son, Alex, and daughter, Ella, on their marriage bonds reported that their mother was born in Breckinridge County, and in the year of her birth her father paid taxes in that county. Named after her paternal grandmother, Jane Henderson, she moved in early youth with her parents to Ohio County, Ky. She lived in Ohio County almost her entire life, residing continuously there for over sixty years. Of the children of John H. and Elizabeth Jackson Mason she was the only one who after reaching maturity continued to make Ohio County her home, and who has progeny there today.

Jane H. Mason lived with her parents until she was 29 when she married Joel Ellis on August 3, 1841 in Ohio County, KY. Two years earlier he had moved to Ohio County purchasing land near the Masons. The Joel Ellis farm was located about two miles north of Hartford, on the Hartford-Hardinsburg Road (Highway 69) near where Lilly's store presently stands.

At the time of their marriage Joel Ellis was a widower, his first wife having died six months before, and he was 56 years old. A prosperous farmer he had earlier served as sheriff of Gallatin County, Ky. He was the son of John Ellis and Sarah Parrish, His grandfather, William Ellis, died May 19, 1766 in Spotsylvania County, Va.; he was survived by his wife, Elizabeth, three sons, Hezekiah, William and John Ellis, four daughters, Mary Proctor, Elizabeth Hawkins, Ann O'Neal and Agnes Ellis. John Ellis was born January 29, 1749 in Virginia, about 1770 he married Sarah Parrish, she was the daughter of Joel Parrish who died in Spotsylvania County, Va. in 1791. Joel Ellis's parents were among the early settlers in the Kentucky territory, making the trip into "the dark and bloody ground" when, it was still part of Virginia. In 1779 only four years after the first settlements in Kentucky, members of the Ellis, Parrish and several other families left Spotsylvania County, Va. and settled near Lexington, in what is now Fayette County, Ky., where in 1784 Joel Ellis was born. When Joel Ellis was nine years old his father, John Ellis, died on January 15, 1794 in Fayette County, Ky.

On October 23, 1806 Joel Ellis married Polly Smith, daughter of James Smith, in Gallatin County, Ky. To them were born twelve children, among them were: William, Lydia (married James Stanton November 7, 1828 in Gallatin County, Ky.), Jane (married Levi McCann December 26, 1831 in Gallatin County, Ky.), Samuel, John, H. C., Nancy, Robert L. and Edward P., all of whom were living when their father made his will in 1868. Another son, Joel D. Ellis, had died before 1868.

Joel Ellis when he moved his family to Ohio County in 1839 came by flatboat down the Ohio River. Several of his older children did not come' to Ohio County. Only two of the children of Joel Ellis by his first wife, Polly Smith, reared families in Ohio County. Nancy P. Ellis born September 15, 1819 in Gallatin County, Ky., married Isiah Craig July 29, 1836, and died July 27, 1899 in Ohio County, Ky. Robert L. Ellis born September 9, 1826 in Gallatin County, Ky., married Mary Helen Smith May 15, 1851 in Ohio County, and died August 11, 1873 in Ohio County. Polly Smith Ellis, wife of Joel Ellis, was born November 16, 1788 and died February 21, 1841, she was buried in the Milton Taylor Cemetery in Ohio County.

Joel Ellis was a slave owner, in 1860 just before the Civil War he owned nine slaves. With the loss of his slaves during the war he suffered heavy financial losses, Three years after the war, in 1868, when Joel Fills wrote his will his political sentiments were poignantly expressed when he wrote: "I have given my children by my first wife as much as I was able to do for them, probably I may have given some of them more had it not been for the dreadful war and the Abolishist (sic) and now it is out of my power." The word Abolitionist was underlined and this added emphasis captured the full depth and breath of his emotions Will of Joel Ellis was written March 14, 1868, probated October 2, 1871 (recorded Ohio County will book D, page 72).

Joel Ellis died August 31, 1871, age 86, and Jane H. Mason Ellis died January 24, 1882, age 71, they were buried in the Milton Taylor Cemetery, near Hartford, a short distance from their home. Jane Mason Ellis was survived by two children, Alex Ellis and Ella Hays, two other children, Charles and Joe Ellis, preceded her in death; she was also survived by a brother, Jackson Mason, of Rockport, Ind., two sisters, Miss Mary Mason and Mrs. Mag Harris, both of Union County, Ky., and 15 grandchildren.

Joel Ellis and Jane H. Mason had four children:

Alexander Campbell ("Alex")	born	27 Jul 1842
Charles Henderson	born	18 Jan 1844
Elvira P. ("Ella")	born	21 Nov 1847
Joseph Mason	born	26 Sep 1849

The following biography of Alexander Campbell Ellis, son of Joel Ellis and Jane Mason, appeared in the Ohio County section, of the book, Kentucky: A History of the State (J. H. Battle, W. H. Perrin & G. C. Kniffin (1885):

Alexander C. Ellis is the eldest child of Joel and Jane (Mason) Ellis, Joel Ellis was born November 17, 1784, in what is now Fayette County, Ky. His father, John Ellis, was a native of Virginia, born January 29, 1749: his father came from England and his mother from Wales. John Ellis came to Kentucky about 1780, and located near the present site of Lexington, where he died January 15, 1794, leaving twelve children, of whom subject's father was the seventh. Joel Ellis was bound out to the carpenter's trade, but upon coming of age gave his attention to farming, in Gallatin County, Ky.; he afterward moved to Henry County, and in 1839 he bought a large tract of land in Ohio County, with a view to stock raising, but owing to the undeveloped condition of the country, this was a failure, and he lost heavily by this venture and by the war. He possessed, however, a good competence at his death, in August, 1871, He was a man of great force of character and held many responsible positions of trust, among which were those of magistrate and sheriff of Gallatin County, He was twice married; his first wife, Polly Smith, died February 21, 1841, leaving twelve children. His second wife, who died January 24, 1882, bore him four children, of whom Alexander C. is the eldest child, and was born July 27, 1842, in this county. He attended the district school, and afterward took a thorough course at the Hartford Seminary. When seventeen years of age he began teaching, which he followed during the winter months for nine years March 31, 1868, he married Mrs. Mary E. Hill, nee Stevens, daughter of John B. and Jane (Baird) Stevens, and has since been trading, dealing in tobacco and farming. For two years he was deputy sheriff of this county, and in 1884 received the nomination for sheriff, but declined to make the race. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity, and he and wife are members of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. Their children are Bennett S., Pearla, Charles H., Ernest and Everett (twins), Howard B., Z Wayne and Samuel H.

Alexander C. Ellis and Mary Elizabeth Stevens had nine children, they were:

Gearet Fitzhugh ("Hugh")	born	17 Jan 1869
Bennett Stevens ("Steve")	born	27 Nov 1870
Pearla	born	23 Jan 1872
"Charles" Henry	born	27 Jul 1873
Warren "Ernest"	born	16 Jun 1875

Blanton "Howard"	born	20 Jul 1877

They were all buried in the Alexander Cemetery, which was on their farm. Located about two miles north of Hartford, just off the Hartford-Owensboro Road (U.S. Highway 231) on the Silver Beach Road, the A. C. Ellis farm and Alexander Cemetery were originally part of the farm settled on in 1797 by his wife's great-grandfather, Col. Alexander Barnett (1745-1819), one of the first settlers of Ohio County. The farm adjoining the cemetery had passed from Col. Barnett, to his daughter, Rebecca Baird (wife of James Baird), to her daughter, Jane Baird Stevens (wife of John Bennett Stevens), to her daughter, Mary E. Ellis (wife of A. C.), and to her son, Sam Ellis, All five generations are buried in the Alexander Cemetery, the first burial there was in 1814.

After the death of Alexander C. Ellis in 1905 his son, Samuel H. Ellis, continued to reside on the farm. Samuel H. Ellis died in 1955, he did not have any children, and when his widow, Tiny, died in 1963, the farm, which had been in the family for 166 years, was sold and the proceeds divided among the nine surviving grandchildren of Alexander C. Death of Estimable Citizen

Mr. A.C. Ellis died at his residence about 2½ miles northwest of Hartford late last Wednesday night, of blood poisoning, superinduced by lung trouble of long standing. He was sick only a few days before his death. He was 62 years of age, and one of Ohio County's best citizens. A wife and seven sons survive him. He was a member of the Christian Church and also of the Masonic fraternity, and his funeral rites were conducted by the latter named body, Friday forenoon. An immense crowd attended his funeral, which was a touching evidence of the high esteem in which he was held. The remains were laid to rest at Alexander Cemetery, near the old home. He was a popular and useful citizen and will be greatly missed.

Hartford Herald, Hartford, Ky., Wednesday, 18 June 1890:

In Memory of Pearls Ellis

On the calm evening of June 12, 1890, the angel of death visited the family of Mr. A. C. Ellis and took from their loving embrace their only daughter, Miss Pearla, and bore her on his pinions to a land of pure delight. She professed faith in Christ in August

1885, and united with the C. P. Church at Beda in which she was a devoted member, but the brightest flowers are always plucked first. Her short life was one worthy of example, a place in her home has been left vacant that never can be filled. Ah! well do we know we will miss her in the years that are to come, yet we would not if we could, call her back to this world of sorrow and anguish. May heaven's richest blessings rest upon the bereaved family in this their irreparable loss. God grant that they may so live that when life conflicts are o'er they may meet again, and with Pearla share the bliss of an eternal triumph. Farewell We meet no more on this side of heaven; The parting scene is o'er, The last sad look is gone. - Lillian

Died, at the residence of Dr. Cox's on the evening of the 12th inst., at 4 o'clock, Miss Pearls Ellis in her 18th year. Pearla was a devoted member of the C. P. Church, and adorned her profession by living a humble consecrated life, devoted to the service of her master. For many months, she had been inflicted, but her death was very unexpected, for she was teaching school at Alexandria, and didn't lose any time up to a few days before her death. Pearls was a model young lady and loved by all who knew her. A very impressive funeral service was conducted by Rev. J. B. Wagner before a large and sympathizing audience. As the beauty and fragrance of flowers hang around the vase after the flowers are gone, so will the beauty and sweetness of her virtuous life linger in our memories, though we consign her body to the tomb and her gentle spirit to the care of heaven.

Jesus while our hearts are bleeding
O'er the spoils death has won,
We would at this solemn meeting
Truly say, "Thy will be done."
Though cast down, we are not forsaken,
Though afflicted not alone -
Thou didst give, thou hast taken;
Blessed Lord thy will be done. - Maude

Died at Beda, Ky., June the 12, 1890, Pearls Ellis, aged 18 years. So passed away one of the sweetest girls of the community. Five years ago, she professed faith in the Savior and united with the Presbyterian church. Precious Pearls was a devoted daughter, a kind and loving sister, a true friend. No one knew her but to love; but God has called his Pearla home. Yes to a bright home beyond the skies where there is no sighing, no sorrow, no strife, but all peace and happiness. Yes, it is hard to give her up, but God has claimed her as his own.

Yes, Pearls sweetly sleeps in death,
Her life to us been denied,
Yet memory, never forget the love
The guardian knot by angels tied.
Within their hearts most sacred vault,
Her much lov'd memory will store.
Till called from earth will meet at last
In that bright world to part no more. - Travis Maple

History of Kentucky, Judge Charles Kerr, Vol. III, American Historical Society, 1922, p142:

Charles Henry Ellis. It is perfectly safe to make the statement that no man can become a leading factor in any line and win such appreciation from his fellow citizens as to be rewarded with high local office unless he has deserved such preferment. Occasionally men do have honors conferred upon them to which they are not entitled, but it is not long before they are found out and they fall back to their real position among their associates. Were there no material rewards attending upon the proper performance of duty and an uprightness of living, the self respect a man earns by such a course is sufficient to raise, him above the level of a time-serving servant, and mark him for what he is. Charles Henry Ellis, president of the Bank of Sturgis, president of the Kentucky Bankers Association, and for four years mayor of Sturgis, is easily one of the most deserving and successful of the citizens of Union County, and one to whom all the above praise should be applied,

Charles Henry Ellis was born in Ohio County, Kentucky, near Hartford, July 27, 1873, a son of Alexander C. and Mary (Stevens) Ellis, both of whom were born in Kentucky. The Ellis family is of Virginia stock, but Joel Ellis, the grandfather, was born in Kentucky, and this state also gave birth to the grandfather Stevens, although his ancestors came from Maryland. Alexander C. Ellis was a farmer and tobacconist of Ohio County, and Charles H. Ellis was reared on the homestead and was early taught to make himself useful to his parents. After attending the rural schools he became a student of Centre College, from which he was graduated, and then for nine years was occupied with teaching school. Entering the banking business he was cashier of the Citizens Bank at Calhoun, Kentucky, for one year, and then occupied a similar position for three years with the Morganfield National Bank of Morganfield, both of which he assisted in organizing. In 1908 he came to Sturgis as cashier of the Bank of Sturgis, and continued in that office until 1920, when he was elected its president. In September, 1920, he was further honored by his fellow bankers of the state, who made him the chief executive of their organization. In politics a democrat, he has always been active in his party and popular with the masses, and was once elected mayor of Sturgis. He is a Master Mason, and belongs to the Christian Church.

In 1902 Mr. Ellis was united in marriage with Miss Corinne Landrum, and they have three daughters. Having had such a long experience as a banker, Mr. Ellis is well qualified to judge wisely with reference to men and their motives, and many times renders very valuable services in advising with reference to prospective investments and expansion of existing business concerns. His interest in his home community is unquestioned, and he is one of the leaders in all wholesome movements designed to improve existing conditions and raise the general standards of the people.

Ohio County News, Hartford, Ky., Friday, 8 November 1935:

Mayor Charles Ellis, of Sturgis, Is Dead

Charles H. Ellis, 62 years old, mayor of Sturgis and a native of Ohio County, died early Sunday at his home following several months illness. He suffered a cerebral hemorrhage three weeks before his death.

Mr. Ellis was prominent in Democrat politics and active in banking organization work. In 1924 he was a delegate to the Democratic Convention in New York, and a few years ago was mentioned for governor. He was elected twice mayor of Sturgis.

A graduate of the American Institute of Banking, Mr. Ellis was the author of numerous articles in banking magazines. He organized the National Bank of Morganfield in 1904, serving as cashier until 1908 when he resigned to become cashier of the Bank of Sturgis, which position he held until his death. He also organized the Citizens Bank at Calhoun.

Christopher Jackson Mason (1813-1896)

A biography of Christopher Jackson Mason (1813-1896), son of John Henderson Mason and Elizabeth Jackson, was published in the book, History Of Warrick, Spencer and Perry Counties, Indiana (Chicago; Goodspeed, Bros. & Co., 1885). On pages 472-473 of the Spencer County section it appeared as follows;

Christopher Jackson Mason, a prominent pioneer of Spencer County, Ind., is a native of Ohio County, Ky., born May 5, 1813, the third of eleven children born to John H. and Elizabeth (Jackson) Mason. The father moved from Virginia, his native State, to Breckenridge County, Ky., when a youth and was there married. He afterward moved to Ohio County, that State, farming many years, and finally died September 22, 1862, in Hancock County, aged eighty years [note: Gravestone of John H. Mason records his date of death as September 2, 1863.] His widow died in Union County in December, 1865. C. J. Mason received a limited youthful education in subscription schools, but in later years, by desultory study, has acquired a fair knowledge of the lower branches of education. At twenty years of age he began farming for himself in his native county, following that occupation summers and flatboating on the river winters for twenty years. In March, 1837, he removed to Spencer County, Ind., locating on a farm in Grass Township. He resided there ten years, when he moved to Luce Township, where in addition to farming he dealt largely in produce, pork and tobacco, shipping these products on flat-boat to New Orleans, where he found ready markets for his goods. Having secured a competency, in this way he moved to Rockport in 1877, where he has since resided retired from active business pursuits. Besides valuable property in town Mr. Mason owns about 1,200 acres of good farming land in the county. He is a staunch Republican in politics, serving as county commissioner from 1860 to 1863, is a member of the Masonic fraternity and himself and wife belong to the Methodist Episcopal Church. He was married April 16, 1835, to Ellen Morgan, of Daviess County, Ky., and five children have been born to their union, only the following named now living: Lycurgus C., Cordelia J. (widow of John Hougland), William T and John H. The mother dying in July, 1848, Mr. Mason was again married in February, 1849, to Martha Thomas, of Mercer County, Ky., by whom he was the father of five children - all dying in infancy. He settled in the wilderness, and cleared and improved his land, undergoing all hardships incident to pioneer life, there being only about a dozen wagons in the county, people using sleds and trucks for hauling.

Christopher Jackson Mason may have been born in Breckinridge County, Ky. In 1813 the year of his birth, his father, John H. Mason, was assessed and paid county taxes in Breckinridge County and thus for at least part of that year resided there. Whether C. J. Mason was born in Ohio County, Ky. or not most of his first 24 years were spent there.

Christopher Jackson Mason was named after his grandfather, Christopher Jackson. He usually signed his name "C. J. Mason" but was commonly called either "Jackson" or "Jack". On April 16, 1835 Jackson Mason married Ellen Morgan, daughter of Thomas Morgan & Margaret Phegley of Daviess County, Ky. Their marriage was recorded in Daviess County, Ky. marriage register A, page 68, his name appears as C. J. Mason.

In the year following his marriage, on August 27, he purchased a 161 acre farm on Rough Creek in Ohio County from William P. and Nancy Duvall for $425 (Ohio County deed book G, page 207). About seven months after buying the farm he left the home of his youth and moved to Spencer County, Ind. His land in Ohio County he sold on May 29, 1838 to James Eidson for $675 (Ohio County deed book G, page 305).

In his new home of Spencer County C. J. Mason became a very successful farmer and businessman. He was one of the most prosperous farmers of the county, in 1860 his land holdings were valued at $25,000 and in 1870 at $33,775 and his personal property was worth $11,530, very sizeable sums at that time. He was active and influential in the politics of his county. The affairs and machinery of Spencer County were run by a board of three commissioners, and C. J. Mason served in this responsible position from 1860 to 1863.

As in the case of many families during the Civil War period political views led to rifts in the Mason family, dividing one relative against another. C. J. Mason was a Republican and a Unionist and like his home state of Indiana stood against slavery. His two oldest sons, Lycurgus and William, both rose to the rank of First Lieutenant in the Union Army. Lycurgus served with Co. F of the 58th Ind. Reg. and William with Co. E of the 25th Ind. Reg. C. J. Mason's native state of Kentucky was about equally divided over the slavery and state rights issues, and unlike Indiana slavery had long existed and been tolerated there. Several of C. J. Mason's relatives in Kentucky were slave owners. At the beginning of the war his brother, James Mason, owned six slaves, his uncle, William Mason, nine; and uncle, Hopkins Mason, two, all three resided in Hancock County, Ky. It is believed disagreements over the slavery issue led to Jackson Mason being purposefully omitted from the division of his uncle, William Mason's estate. William Mason had no children of his own and when he died in December of 1861, his estate one of the largest in Hancock County, Ky. valued at $14480 he directed by his will to be divided among his brothers and sister and their families. All of his nieces and nephews were to receive a share, with one exception Jackson Mason's to get none", the sharpness of the wording in his will was not lessened by any explanation. William Mason like C. J. Mason was politically active and had served in some of the most responsible positions in his county, and no doubt was strongly committed to his views. William Mason was very close to brother, James Mason, they had long lived near each other. When William died he gave James his gold watch, no doubt his most personal possession, and appointed him administrator of his estate. James's son, Richard, served in the Confederate Army during the war, and his son-in-law, William W. Pierce, gave his life in the Confederate cause. Jackson Mason's exclusion from his uncles will and the political differences between him and his brother, James, must have caused very painful feelings in the family that were long healing.

Jackson Mason's wife, Ellen Morgan Mason, was born December 25, 1811 and died July 4, 1848. She was survived by four children, Cordelia Jackson, Lycurgus Christopher, William Thomas and John Henderson. Two other children had preceded her in death - Hannibal (October 28, 1836 – October 28, 1838) and an infant daughter (born August 16, 1845 & died August 18?, 1845). Ellen and her two infants were buried with at the Pleasant Valley Cemetery in Spencer County, Ind.

Jackson Mason remarried Martha Ann Thomas on February 23, 1849 in Spencer County, Ind. She was the daughter of William Green Thomas & Mary Ferguson and was born April 1, 1819 Ky.; five children born to their union died in infancy.

The last nineteen years of Jackson Mason's life were spent in the town of Rockport, the county seat of Spencer County, Ind. There on September 27, 1896 he died at the age of 83. He wrote his will March 21, 1890 and it was probated October 7, 1896 and was recorded Spencer County will book 3, page 44. By his will he left his wife, Martha A., his residence and property in Rockport, his horse, cow, buggy and $3000; the remainder of his estate was to be divided among his four children. In his will he made provisions for some of his personal possessions, to his son, John H., he gave his gold watch and chain; to daughter, Cordelia, a large crayon picture of himself; to son, William T., his gold headed cane; and to son, Lycurgus C., his gold spectacles. Christopher Jackson Mason was buried in the Pleasant Valley Cemetery, near midway, about seven miles northwest of Rockport; both of his wives and seven infant children were also buried. Announcing his death the following obituary appeared in the Rockport newspaper (note, almost all of his obituary was taken verbatim from his biography published in the History of Spencer County):

Rockport Journal, Rockport, Ind., Friday, 2 October 1896:

Death of Christopher J. Mason

Another one of the prominent pioneer citizens of Spencer County passed away in the death of Christopher Jackson Mason ("Uncle Jack", as he was familiarly called) which occurred at his residence in this city last Sunday at 10:15 p.m., after a brief illness. His age was 83 years, 4 months and 22 days, having been born in Ohio County, Kentucky, May 5, 1813, the third of eleven children born to John H. and Elizabeth (Jackson) Mason.

The subject of this sketch received a limited education in the subscription schools of those days, but afterwards by his own efforts acquired a fair knowledge of the common branches of education. At twenty years of age he began farming for himself in his native county, following that occupation in summer and flatboating on the river during winter, for twenty years. In March, 1837, he moved to Spencer County, Ind., locating on a farm in Grass Township. He resided there ten years, when he removed to Luce Township, where in addition to farming he dealt largely in produce, pork and tobacco, shipping these products on flatboats to New Orleans where he found ready market for his goods. Having secured a competency in this way he moved to Rockport in 1877, where he has since resided, retired from active business pursuits. Besides valuable property in town, Mr. Mason owned about 1000 acres of good farming land in Spencer County. He was a staunch Republican in politics, serving as county commissioner from 1860 to 1863, was a member of the Masonic fraternity and he and his wife belonged to the Methodist Episcopal Church. He was married April 16, 1835 to Ellen Morgan, of Daviess County, Ky., and five children were born to their union, only the following named are living: Lycurgus C. Mason, of Independence, Ran., Mrs. Cordelia Hougland and Wm. T. Mason, of this city, and John H. Mason, of Luce Township. His first wife dying in 1848, Mr. Mason was again married in 1849 to Martha Thomas, of Mercer County, Ky., by whom he was the father of five children, all dying in infancy. He settled in the wilderness of this county, cleared and improved the lands, undergoing the hardships of pioneer life Mr. Mason was one of our best citizens and will be sadly missed by the people of Spencer County. He was strictly honorable and upright in all his dealings and was universally respected. Funeral services were conducted at the residence at 9:30 Wednesday morning by Rev. H. C. Clippinger, of New Albany, in the presence of a large audience, after which the Masonic order took charge and conducted the services, the remains being laid to rest in Pleasant Valley Cemetery near Midway in Grass Township.

Jackson Mason's widow, Martha Ann Thomas Mason, died April 23, 1898. She left no surviving children; she lost five infants, including – Henry G. (July 13, 1851 – October 10, 1852), Frederick W. (May 7, 1853 – January 24, 1856), George F. (September 24, 1855 – May 26, 1858). The following article appeared in the Rockport newspaper:

Rockport Journal, Rockport, Ind., Friday, 29 April 1898:

Mrs. Martha A. Mason, widow of the late C. J. Mason, departed this life on Saturday last at her home in this city, aged 79 years. The funeral services were conducted at the residence on Monday at 9 o'clock a.m. Revs. L. D. Moore and J M. Nash, officiating, after which the remains were taken to Pleasant Valley Cemetery, in Grass township, for interment. Cordelia Jackson, daughter of Christopher J. Mason and Ellen Morgan, was born in November 1838 in Spencer County, Ind., and November 19, 1861 married Dr. John Spencer Hoagland (1831-1877). Rockport Journal, Rockport, Ind., Friday, 11 March 1904:

Prominent Citizen Dead

C. M. Hougland Passes Away In The Prime Of Life

Charles Mason Hougland, son of Dr. John S. and Cordelia J. Hougland, was born in Rockport August 30, 1862, and died March 7, 1904, in the same room in which he was born. Funeral services were conducted from the house Wednesday after noon and the remains were laid to rest in the Shiloh Cemetery. Revs. E. H. Wood and Chas. H. Armstrong conducting the last sad rites

He was married to Miss Amanda G. Wright, December 24, 1885, who died February 17, 1891, to this union were given three children yet living, Jennie B., John Mason, and Clare Wright. He was again married February-20, 1901, to Miss Lillian B. Pritchard who survives. His mother and daughter Jennie are at present making their home in California and were unable to be here in the last hours and at the funeral. The demise was not unexpected though for fatal disease had fastened itself upon him four or five years ago and the days since that time were spent in ineffectual struggle against it. Change of scene, travel, medicines and all else were of no avail and he grew gradually weaker. He never gave up but attended to his business affairs just the same. On Monday morning of last week he was compelled to take to his last bed, one week later at nearly midnight his spirit passed from him and that great big heart was forever stilled. He was conscious to the last and conversed to within five minutes of his death. Calm in that final hour he called his loved ones about him and to them gave words of counsel and hope. His last thoughts were of their welfare.

The deceased has for the last seventeen years been a prominent business man of this city. In 1894 he and T. R. Hardy formed a partnership to deal in grain, seeds and tobacco, and had built up a big business with branches in many towns around. They were on the point of incorporating a short time ago, but Mr. Hardy will probably conduct the business alone, after the partnership affairs are wound up.

Born and raised right here in the community the deceased needs from us no eulogy - that was written by his kindly acts. His cheery jovial nature wade friends on every hand enemies were few if any. Many things could be said in praise of his integrity, progressiveness, liberality, usefulness as a citizen and sympathetic nature but that which shows all this and more too - he is sadly missed by all who knew him. The bereaved family have the sympathy of the whole community.

Lycurgus Christopher Mason, son of Christopher J. Mason and Ellen Morgan, was born October 1, 1840 in Spencer County, Ind. He left Spencer County sometime after 1870 and moved to Kansas, where he lived in Independence, Kansas. He married Mary Virginia Britton (April 5, 1845 Rockport, Ind. - December, 21, 1908 , buried Mount Hope Cemetery, Independence, Kans.). He was the father of: Evaline Ellen (November 7, 1874 – September 27, 1959, wife of Frank Warner Howes) and Eugenia (March 14, 1877 – June 4, 1962, wife of Elmer Andrew Miner).

Funeral of Capt. Mason

Arrangements For Burial Not Yet Made. Two Brothers of the Deceased Expected on the Evening Train - No definite announcement until Tomorrow. Arrangements for the funeral of Capt. L. C. Mason, whose sudden death from heart disease occurred yesterday, have not yet been made and the plans will not be made public until tomorrow, when the relatives, now absent, will be present, and will be consulted. Except for the statement that the funeral will be at the Mason home, 624 East Main, no details have been arranged today. Mrs. Evaline Howes, of Chicago, accompanied by her husband, arrived this afternoon to be present at the funeral of her father. Two brothers, John and William Mason are expected to come in on the evening train from their home in Evansville, Ind.

Lycurgus C. Mason was born in Spencer county, Indiana, October 1, 1840, and was 72 years and five months old when death overtook him so suddenly. His boyhood days were spent on an Indiana farm. When the civil war came on he enlisted in Company F. Fifty-Eighth Indiana Volunteers, serving from 1861 to 1865 and coming out with a captain's commission. He went in as a sergeant and later was promoted and transferred to the engineers corps and in this capacity with his company of pontoon men helped to bridge many streams between Chatanooga and Atlanta when General Sherman broke the backbone of the South's resistance with his march in the sea. He went with the army through the Carolina's, a campaign that showed the military strength of the Confederacy to be only a shell, and he participated in the grand review of the Union Army in Washington at the close of the war.

Captain Mason came to Independence in 1871 and engaged in the occupation of a broker, from that taking up farming, grain growing and stock raising. Early in his residence here he bought 700 acres of bottom land east of the city which he has farmed ever since. Later he engaged in the banking business, becoming an officer of the First National, a position he held to the day of his death. He has served the city as mayor, as commissioner of water works, as member of the school board and in other positions and always with great success, going about his work in a quiet, thorough business-like way that was very effective.

He was married to Mary V. Britton in 1873 and two daughters blessed this union - Mrs. Evelyn Howes of Chicago and Mrs. Eugenia Minor, of this city. Mrs. Mason departed this life several years ago.

Captain Mason was almost a lifelong member of the Presbyterian society and a pillar of the Independence church. He was also a member of high standing of the Masonic fraternity.

William Thomas Mason, son of Christopher J. Mason and Ellen Morgan, was born September 20, 1842 in Spencer County, Ind. On January 30, 1870 in Spencer County, Ind. he married Julia Ann Dunnigan (August 19, 1847 – February 6, 1907, daughter of Grant T. Dunnigan & Nancy Cunningham) and they had two children, Grant Jackson (February 16, 1871 – April 9, 1894, not married) and Maude (April 29, 1881 – March 26, 1922, married Shirley Charles Lang). He died November 22, 1921 in Rockport, Ind. He was one of the leading businessmen in Rockport, he founded the National Bank in Rockport and was its cashier for 35 years, in 1872-73 he served as a trustee of Rockport. He, his wife, and their two children were buried at the Sunset Hill Cemetery in Rockport, Spencer County, Ind. A biography of his life and family was given in the front page article published in the Rockport Journal following his death, the article covered about a third of the page and was accompanied by his portrait.

Rockport Journal, Rockport, Ind., Friday, 25 November 1921:

WILLIAM T. MASON, PROMINENT CITIZEN OF ROCKPORT

William Thomas Mason was one of six children born to Christopher Jackson and Ellen Morgan Mason. He was born September 20th, 1842 in Grass township in this county on a farm then owned by his father. When but a lad his father's family moved to Luce township where the deceased grew to manhood. On July 9th 1861, when but 18 years of age, possessing a fine physique, inspired with a lofty patriotism he answered the call of his country and enlisted in Co. E, 25th Indiana Regiment under Capt. William Jones and was mustered in on August 19th, 1861, as sergeant of his company. He rose by rapid advancement until on July 8th, 1862, he was made a 1st Lieutenant of his company. He was engaged in some of the Civil War's hardest battles, among them being Fort Donaldson and Shiloh. He was severely wounded at the battle of Hatchie river, having his right shoulder shot away by a cannon ball. From this wound he suffered during his entire life. On account of this wound he was mustered out of the service and given an honorable discharge January 12th, 1863.

After the war was over his health had so improved that he was able to complete his education, which he did at Indiana University. He then returned to Rockport and entered upon his successful business career. January 30th, 1870, he was united in marriage with Miss Julia A. Dunigan, who is remembered as one of the city's most lovable characters, and with whom he lived in mutual devotion and love until her death February 6th, 1907. To this union were born two children; one son, Grant Jackson, who passed away at the age of 23 years and at the beginning of what promised to be a useful and prosperous business life, one daughter, Mrs. Maude Lang, who with her husband, Dr. Shirley C. Lang, and their two charming daughters, are left of his immediate family to mourn the loss of father and grandfather.

After the death of Mrs. Mason, Dr. and Mrs. Lang moved into the Mason home on Third Street in this city and continued to live with the father until death, enjoying and sharing in his cheerful and always bright companionship during health, and caring for him with most beautiful filial devotion during his sickness. On the evening of February 11th, 1920, after an enjoyable day with his family he was suddenly stricken with cerebral hemorrhage, from which he suffered until his end came at 8:30 o'clock p.m., November 22nd, 1921, at the advanced age of 79 years, 2 months and three days. The funeral will be held at the family residence on Third Street, Friday at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Interment will be in Sunset Hill cemetery.

Mr. Mason was an honored and devoted member of the G.A.R. This was one of his chief delights Coupled with love of home and family was his love for his country, Descended from an ancestry on both sides of his parents family who had fought in the war for American independence, he was justly proud of his own record in that he was not unfaithful to the legacy of patriotic devotion they had left him but had offered his all in defending and perpetuating the freedom which they had so hardly won. Mr. Mason's business life was devoted somewhat to his fanning interests, but principally to the banking business in this city. He founded the Old Rockport bank and was its cashier for 35 years. By his conservative business policies and natural aptitude to the banking business he succeeded in making this bank one of the strongest institutions of its kind in Southern Indiana.

Mr. Mason was strongly attached to his home, his family, his town and his country. He was especially interested in Sunset Hill cemetery, to which he devoted much of his attention and means, and to him is due much of the elegance and beauty of the spot where his body will lie in perfect repose until the Master of all shall call it to eternal life.

The funeral will be conducted by Rev. R. R. Bryan, of Calumet, Mich., former pastor of Rockport circuit M.E. church.

The following obituaries of William T. Mason's wife, Julia Ann Dunnigan Mason, son Grant Jackson Mason, and daughter Maude Mason Lang appeared in the Rockport, Ind. newspapers:

Rockport Journal, Rockport, Ind., Friday, 8 February 1907:

Mrs. W.T, Mason, who had been sick for several months, died yesterday (Wednesday) morning at 9:20 o'clock, at her home in this city. The end had been expected hourly for several days. Funeral services will be held from the residence tomorrow (Friday) afternoon at two o'clock, Rev. R. R. Bryan officiating. Friends are invited. (note: a larger obituary appeared in the next issue of February 15).

Rockport Journal, Rockport, Ind., Friday, 13 April 1894:

Death of Grant Mason

Our community was greatly shocked to learn of the death of Grant Mason, on last Monday night at 7 o'clock, at the home of his parents on Third Street. He was the only son of W. T. Mason and wife and their eldest child, being 23 years of age. His father is the well known cashier of the Rockport Bank. Grant had recently opened up, on Main Street, one of the finest stores in Southern Indiana, and did a splendid business from the start, and had a bright and promising future - but for his early death. He was affable and genial in his nature, and will be greatly missed, especially by our young people. Grant was a member of the Presbyterian church, having joined several years ago during a meeting conducted by Rev. Molloy, of Owensboro, Ky., Rev. Molloy conducted the funeral services at the home of the deceased, assisted by Rev. H. C. Clippinger, Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. It was a sad and impressive service, and was largely attended. The floral offerings were numerous and most beautiful. His bereaved parents have the sincere sympathy of all our people in this, their sad affliction.

Rockport Journal, Rockport, Ind., Friday, 31 March 1922:

A Tribute To Mrs. Maude Mason Lang

Maude Mason Lang was born April 29th, 1880, the child of Julia Dunnigan Mason, who died February 6th, 1907 and of William T. Mason who died a few months since, having been bed fast for more than one and one-half years, during which Maude was all the while at his side.

She died Sunday March 26th, 1922, aged 41 years, 10 months and 27 days, in the prime of her womanhood and strength.

Her brother Grant, 9 years her senior, died April 8th, 1893.

She was married to Dr. Shirley C. Lang, October 14th, 1904, and to them were born two girls, Julia Mason, on June 26th, 1908, and Shirley, June 17th, 1912. Her husband and children survive.

Her nearest surviving collateral relatives are two aunts and an uncle on her mother's side who reside at distant places and cousins on her father's side.

The main branches of her family are gone and no male child survives to keep the name of that family alive.

The natal and the dying moments of Maude Mason Lang, hours separated by forty-two fateful years, were spent in the same room of this home, which, often wreathed in mourning, canopied and absorbed as well, her activities and strength, for here is the scene of her entire life's story.

Dowered by nature with deep emotions and strong enduring loves, the sunshine of joy and the storms of sorrow found firmest lodgement in her breast; so that, whether, when aged thirteen she was crushed and bereaved at the loss of her only brother, Grant, a genial and promising boy; or as a young woman, anguish stricken at the separation from her mother, Julia Dunnigan Mason, whose long and trying afflictions endeared her to Maude in a degree unusual; or heart-broken, but a little while ago, at the departure of her father William T. Mason for whose sake and to administer surcease and soothing respite to his languishing, pain racked body, perchance, she gave her own life, and so attuned in unison were they that it is not vain to hope that somewhere in the azure fields their raised spirits now commune; through all of it, wherever you lift the veil, that which fixes your attention and enlists your affectionate admiration, is her conduct under trial, her selfless spending of herself for those she loved. Surely the truest test of devotion is such service. Only suffering draws the inmost heart, and can elicit the perfume of the soul. Thus crowned with a coronet of sad cypress leaves, this aspect of her life was beautiful and holy.

She was wedded to her first and only sweetheart, Dr. Shirley C. Lang, to whose professional success she strove to contribute and in which she gloried, for between them honor and adoration were mutual and reciprocal, their nuptial union being sublimely intertwined by two sweet girls, Julia Mason and little Shirley.

Intuitively refined and pure, she was charitable in thought and deed, zealous, energetic, competent and purposeful, she accomplished substantial good for her community in a moral and social way, righteously proud and ambitious, she followed high ideals, among them being the establishment of her right to membership in the Daughters of the American Revolution, which she achieved, steadfast, helpful, gentle and sympathetic toward those, who came in touch with her, she won an abiding place in the hearts of a host of loyal friends, and whatever she set her hand to do was wrought with her whole heart and soul and brain; and possessed of an indomitable will, she pursued her course almost irresistibly, all her aims being chastened by a Christian spirit, She was the type of woman most fitted to live.

Life at its worst is usually desired, but taken at its best, how sweet it was to her, how alluring its prospects, how appealing its inducements, situated and surrounded as she was Amid the pitiable wreck of blighted hopes and broken plans of middle life, keenly alert in mind to all things and conscious of approaching death, what solicitous, anxious, feverish visions visited her, filmed with the precious images Of her darling girls, the one standing with reluctant feet where the brook of girlhood and the river of womanhood meet, both not yet realizing their own, immense, irreparable loss, but conscious that they stand in the shadow of their first great grief? A situation in contemplation of which the mind sickens and recoils upon itself.

Let us believe that she saw in this deep, dark tragedy a mystic and ethereal meaning that only the rapt departing soul may know, and that her prayers for the future welfare of her little ones, too fervent for utterance, upborne on the tireless pinions of a mother's matchless love, winged their way straight to the Great Heart of Infinite Love that beats for all the world.

Yes, shall thy grave with, rising flowers be drest,
And the green turf lie lightly on thy breast;
There shall the morn her earliest tears bestow,
There the first roses of the year shall blow. - W. C. M.

Maude Mason Lang was buried in the Sunset Hill Cemetery in Rockport, Ind. Her husband, Dr. Shirley Charles Lang, born 1882, died 1954, was buried by her side. After his wife's death Dr. Lang and their two girls moved to Evansville, Ind. Both of the daughters of Dr. Shirley C. Lang and Maude Mason married doctors. Julia Mason Lang, born June 26, 1908 at Rockport, Ind., married Dr. Joseph Emerson Welborn, June 6, 1930 in Evansville, Ind., presently she is living in Dayton, Ohio. Shirley Mason Lang, born June 17, 1912 at Rockport, Ind., married Dr. Merrill Frederick Snethen, March 23, 1935 in Evansville, Ind., she lived at 700 Sunset Ave. in Evansville and died June 6, 1983 at Rochester, Minn.

John Henderson Mason, son of Christopher J. Mason and Ellen Morgan, was born April 16, 1848 in Spencer County, Ind. He married Hattie A. Walden on October 11, 1877, and they had one child, Ellen. He died January 10, 1922 in Columbus, Georgia, and was buried in Riverdale Cemetery in that city. The following articles appeared in the Rockport, Ind. newspaper following his death:

Rockport Journal, Rockport, Ind., Friday, 13 January 1922:

John H. Mason

Mrs. S.C. Lang received a telegram Tuesday afternoon announcing the death of her uncle, John H. Mason at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. M. Baird at Columbus, Ga. Mr. Mason had been in poor health for about a year and early last summer went with Mrs. Mason to spend the summer with their daughter at Columbus, Ga. In the autumn Mr. Mason had a paralytic stroke but recent letters indicated that he was improving and the family had hopes that he would recover sufficiently to return home. The telegram stated that he had died at 10 o'clock that day and that the funeral would be held at Columbus. Mr. Mason was almost 74 years old and was the last survivor of a family of eleven children. We will be furnished with an obituary for next week.

Rockport Journal, Rockport, Ind., Friday, 20 January 1922:

John Henderson Mason

In Memoriam

"Time knows not the weight of sleep or weariness, Night's deep darkness has no chain to bind his rushing pinions."

The years have rolled back the curtain of time on the final scene in the great drama of life; The gates of the future stand ajar that the soul of a friend may take its flight into the great beyond. John Henderson Mason was the last of six children born to Christopher Jackson Mason and Ellen Morgan Mason, who settled in Grass township, Spencer County, in 1837. Later they moved to Luce township, where John grew from infancy to stalwart manhood. He was born April 16, 1848, was educated in the common schools.

He was united in marriage to Miss Hattie A. Walden, October 11, 1877. He spent his life on the old Mason homestead amid the scenes of his boyhood days, enduring the toil and hardships incident to farm life in semi-pioneer days. He was a devoted and faithful member of the Shiloh M.E. church, punctual in attendance and liberal in his contributions to its support. As a husband and father, he was devoted and self-sacrificing. As a man he was true to his conception of Christianity, citizenship and friendship. He devoted his life to his farming interests and prided himself in providing comfortable homes for his tenants. He was a lover of nature, and was never happier than when working among his flowers. He loved to watch the rose unfold and behold the beauty of its petals; but he loved more the power that unfolded the rose and gave it its perfume.

In the death of J.H. Mason, Spencer County loses one of her best citizens, the community a man who was interested in the promotion of every cause that tended to place the community on a higher plane of life. Thus closes a life worthy of emulation.

The funeral service was conducted at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Ellen Baird, Columbus, Ga., by Rev. J. A. Thomas, pastor of St. Luke Methodist Church. The burial was at Riverdale Cemetery.

A sob, a tear and a mound of flowers mark the last resting place of husband, father and friend. J. B. M

Ellen Mason the only child of John Henderson Mason and Hattie A Walden, was born December 1, 1878 and married Dr. James Madison Baird on November 22, 1899 in Spencer County, Ind., She died October 23, 1953 Columbus, GA., where she was buried in the Riverdale Cemetery. On October 1, 1953 she wrote her will, it was probated and recorded in Fulton County, Georgia on December 9, 1953 and was recorded in Spencer County, Ind. on January 6, 1954 (Spencer County, Ind. will book 7, page 151). In Ellen Mason Baird's will she named her husband, Dr. J. M. Baird, three sons, Dr. J. Mason Baird, Emmett Holt Baird, and W. Neal Baird, and her mother, Mrs. Hattie Mason.

Joseph Allen Mason (1814-1869)

Joseph Allen Mason, son Of John Henderson Mason and Elizabeth Jackson, was born January 24, 1814. In the year of his birth his family resided in Breckinridge County, Ky. He was named after Joseph Allen, who at that time was serving as the county clerk of Breckinridge County. Joseph Allen, a lawyer, when Breckinridge County was formed in 1799 was chosen county and circuit clerk, offices he held for a period of fifty-eight years. He was one of the most widely known figures in Western Kentucky. In the official history of Breckinridge County no name appears more frequently than that of Joseph Allen. His wife, Margaret Crawford Allen, was a daughter of Samuel Crawford and Janet Mason, and a first cousin of Joseph Allen Mason's father, John Henderson Mason.

Joseph Allen Mason grew to manhood in Ohio County, Ky., the greater part of his first 28 years being spent there. At the age of 21, in 1835, he appeared for the first time in the tax records of Ohio County, joining as tax payers his father, John H. and his older brother, Jackson Mason, On March 19, 1838 he purchased from Samuel Houston part of lot #49 in Hartford, Ohio

County, Ky.; and on October 11, 1839 he sold it to William J. Berry for $135. At the time of the 1840 Ohio County census he was not enumerated by the census taker as a head of a household and probably was counted under someone else's household name. County deed records at that time indicate he was residing in the town of Hartford.

In 1841 Joseph A. Mason served as deputy sheriff of Ohio County, assisting sheriff James C. Rogers.

About 1842 Joseph A. Mason left Ohio County and moved to Union County, Ky., in 1841 he was in Ohio County and in 1843 in Union County. Union County became his permanent home, there he married and reared a family, and descendants bearing the Mason name live there today. The move was probably influenced by the presence in Union County of his uncle, James Mason, who had been living there for about twenty years. After moving there their families lived near each other and attended the same church, the Antioch Methodist Church.

Joseph A. Mason on his move to Union County was accompanied by his brother, James M. Mason. In October of 1842 James M. had married Nancy M. Blincoe in Hancock County, Ky., and in 1843 he and Joseph A. appear for the first time in the tax records of Union County. After arriving in Union County the two brothers were in a partnership, jointly owning a lot in Uniontown, where they operated a store from 1843 to 1846. On April 15, 1846 James sold his half interest in the partnership to Joseph for $450, both were then living in Uniontown (Union County deed book I, page 115). The sell appears to have been motivated by James and his wife Nancy's decision to move back to her home in Hancock County, Ky., shortly afterwards they left Union County and returned to Hancock County.

On November 28, 1844 Joseph Allen Mason married Elizabeth Ann Waller in Union County, Ky. A native of Union County, she was born October 13, 1824. Her parents, Aaron & Mary Allison (Givens) Waller, lived in the Morganfield Precinct, a few miles west of Morganfield.

In 1847 Joseph A. Mason sold the Uniontown lot and purchased a town lot in Morganfield. Four years later he acquired a farm of 110 acres, three miles west of Morganfield near where his wife's family lived. On this farm he lived the last eighteen years of his life, and here most of his children were born and grew to adulthood. The farm today, 135 years later is still in the family, it is owned by a great-granddaughter, Mary Elizabeth Mason Collins. A plat map of the Morganfield Precinct in the Historical Atlas of Henderson and Union Counties, Ky., published in 1880 shows the location of the farm, site is marked as residence of Mrs. E. Mason, on Antioch Road (now Highway 360) just north of the Antioch Church.

Joseph A. Mason died in Union County on May 1, 1869, at the age of 55. He wrote his will August 1, 1864, in it he refers to the sale of negroes and division of proceeds. By his will in addition to his wife and children he made provisions for his unmarried sister, Mary P. Mason. His will was probated June 14, 1869 in the Union County circuit court and was recorded in will book F, page 333. His brother-in-laws, William Waller and John G. Waller, were appointed administrators of his estate on June 14, 1869.

Joseph A. Mason was first buried in a small family cemetery on his farm in the Antioch community. But after the death of his wife in 1906 his remains were moved by his son, John, to the Masonic Cemetery in Morganfield, where, a large beautiful monument stands to their memory. The cemetery on the Mason farm had been the burying ground for the Waller family, and is referred to by both family names. Here Joseph A. Mason's mother, Elizabeth Jackson Mason was buried in 1865. Today no one knows if she was left to rest here or was moved to Morganfield when her son was. The cemetery by time and neglect has virtually been destroyed. Several stones have been carried off and of seven monuments that remain none are erect, among these are ones bearing the names of: Joseph Mason (January 24, 1814 - May 1, 1869) and Zabith Mason wife of John (December 20, 1790 - December 17, 1865).

Joseph A. Mason was survived by his wife and ten children, Mary, Lawrence, Sarah, Camilla, Waller, John, Wayne, Robert, Matt and Lyle, all were still living at home, their ages ranging from the oldest of 23 to the youngest of 2. He was also survived by two brothers, Jackson Mason of Spencer County, Ind. and James Mason of Hancock County, Ky.; and three sisters, Mrs. Jane Ellis of Ohio County, Ky., Miss Mary P Mason and Mrs. Mag Harris, both of Union County.

Joseph Allen Mason and Elizabeth Ann Waller were the parents of eleven children:

Mary E.	born	1 Oct 1845
Lawrence	born	15 Oct 1846
Sarah Gillum	born	1 Oct 1848
Camilla	born	30 Oct 1850
Aaron Waller	born	28 Aug 1852
John	born	20 Jul 1854
Wayne	born	6 Feb 1857
Rebecca	born	20 Feb 1859
Robert	born	2 May 1861
Matthew	born	24 Jul 1863
Lyle	born	14 Apr 1861

Dates of birth and death of Joseph A. Mason and his family, including his parents, John H. Mason and Elizabeth Jackson, were recorded in the bible of his son, Robert Mason. The birth of John H. Mason (1784-1863) and Elizabeth Jackson Mason (1790-1865) are the same as recorded on their gravestones in the Mason-Blincoe Cemetery (Hancock County) and Waller-Mason Cemetery (Union County) respectively. The dates of their death have the same year and month but the day of the month varies for both. Robert Mason recorded his grandfather, John H. Mason, died September 12, 1863, his gravestone has his date of death as September 2, 1863; and he wrote that his grandmother, Elizabeth Mason, died December 11, 1865, and on her marker is recorded December 17, 1865. The dates of birth and death in the bible for Joseph A. Mason, his wife and children are the same as recorded on their cemetery markers in Morganfield and/or on their death certificates on record in Union County. The family bible of Robert Mason upon his death in 1948 went to his son, Allen W. Allen W. Mason and his wife, Mabel Conway, had no children and after their deaths the bible was given to their niece and present owner, Patricia Ann Conway Hetrick, of Morganfield, Ky., daughter of A.V. Conway, a brother of Allen W 's wife Mabel.

Joseph A. Mason's wife, Elizabeth Ann Waller, was born October 13, 1824 in Union County, Ky., the daughter of Aaron Waller and Mary Allison Givers. Her grandparents, John Waller and Mary Small, came to Kentucky about 1784 from Fredericksburg, Virginia. In 1805 they moved to Union County from Washington County, Ky. They lived in the Waverly section of Union County and were the parents of ten children. In the History of Union County, Ky., (1886) the following was written about the Waller family:

It is probable..., that if the descendants of the Wallers could all be counted by the historian, it would be found that this deserves the name of being called a Union County family, per excellence. The reticence of members of this family has prevented us from getting any detailed account of the family, but we are glad to be able to lay before our readers the following from the pen of a lady who is a Waller only because her husband claimed that honored name:

"John Waller, a native of Wales, settled in Virginia (name of county not known) in the early part of the Seventeenth Century, and lived to the extreme age of 110 years, (names and number of children not known.) His son John, born in 1739, was married in 1771 to Mary Small, born in 1755. He emigrated to Kentucky during the years of her repeated knockings for admission into the Federal Union, and settled in Nelson County near Bardstown shortly after that station was established. Here he brought his young wife and two or three infant children to try their fortunes amid the sound of the warwhoop and in sight of the gleaming tomahawk of the savages, terrors that were only too frequently realized. At one time, in company with some of his neighbors, returning from Louisville with pack-horses, they were surprised by a party of Indians, and he being in the rear was wounded and with one other captured, his horse escaping and running the distance home, carrying safely the load on its back. He was kept a prisoner two years before making his escape. Once an opportunity for deliverance presented itself, but he refused to avail himself of it because his companion was sleeping and could not be aroused without attracting attention, preferring rather than desert his friend, to remain in Indian custody until they could both escape together and return to their families who had all this while mourned them as dead.

"When navigation on the Mississippi became free, he built a large mill, probably on one of the forks of Salt river, and bought quantities of wheat, ground it into flour and shipped it to New Orleans.

"Here were born other sons and daughters until ten names were entered upon the family register, five sons and five daughters. These all, save three sons, lived to years of maturity. When they were pretty well grown up he gathered up his goods and family and moved to Union County in 1805. six years prior to its separation from Henderson and becoming a distinct county. He came here that he might with small sums place his children in possession of broad acres and rich lands. He lived to see them all married and settled around him and died in 1822, aged eighty-three years. His wife followed him to the grave in less than one year, aged sixty-eight years. These sons and daughters have also passed away - their families scattered residents of different states. The descendants of Aaron Waller, his son, who died in 1851, are the only ones now living in Union County. He left ten sons and three daughters, and his grandchildren, great-grandchildren and great-great-grandchildren now number nearly one hundred."

Aaron Waller was born March 3, 1789 and died in 1851, he lived on a farm about three miles west of Morganfield. He married first Elizabeth Rives and then Mary Allison Givers. Thirteen children were born of these unions, three by the first and ten by the second. They were;

Mary Gillum, Joseph Burwell, Thomas Small, Elizabeth Ann, John Givens, William, Elijah Lyle, Nathan J., Matthew Robb, Gibson Taylor, Margaret Rebecca, Robert Aaron and James Kenny Waller, all resided in the Morganfield district. In the annals of the business and political life of Union County the Waller name is possibly the county's most prominent and distinguished by virtue of its prevalence.

Elizabeth Ann Waller Mason lived 37 years following her husband's death, she died August 26, 1906, at the age of 81. Following her death the following article appeared in the Union County newspaper;

Union County Advocate, Morganfield, Ky., Morganfield, Ky., 1906:

Mrs. Elizabeth Ann Mason was the daughter Of Aaron Waller and Mary Waller. She was the oldest child in a family of ten children. She was born October 13, 1824. Of this family four brothers and one sister are living - John G. Waller, William Waller, Matt Robb Waller, Mrs. Rebecca Price and Robert Aaron Waller.

She was married to Joseph A. Mason November 28, 1844; was left a widow May 1, 1869, passed to her reward August 26, 1906.

Sister Mason was the mother of eleven children - Mary E., Lawrence, Sarah Gilliam, Carmilla, Weller, John, Wayne, Rebecca, Robert, Matt and Lyle. Four of these children have gone to their reward.

Some thirty years ago she expressed her desire to be a Christian in a meeting held at Antioch by Rev. James A. Lewis. About the year 1884, under the ministry of Rev. J. C. Petrie, she joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at Antioch.

To a near friend years ago she expressed assurance of her love for Christ. Six years ago she was confined to her room, and ever since she has been an invalid.

She was a devoted mother and was lovingly and tenderly cared for during her years of confinement.

It was beautiful to see the devotion of the only daughter at home to her mother.

The old home will be lonely now. Mother and sister is gone, but be assured that you may meet her in heaven.

God bless the children, brothers, sister and loved ones. S.L.C. Coward, Pastor.

Two of the children of Joseph A Mason and Elizabeth Ann Weller died in childhood, Rebecca died February 5, 1861, two weeks before her second birthday, and Lyle died May 20, 1880 at the age of 13. Both are buried in the Masonic Cemetery in Morganfield beside their parents. Of the other nine children all after reaching adulthood continued to reside in Union County, in and around Morganfield, and all are buried in Morganfield in either the older Masonic Cemetery or the newer Odd Fellows Cemetery.

Almost her entire life was spent on the farm purchased by her father in 1851. She devotedly cared for her mother, who for the last six years of her life was an invalid. At the age of 73 she died May 31, 1919 and was buried in the same plot as her parents in the Masonic Cemetery in Morganfield.

Sarah Gillum Mason, daughter of Joseph A. Mason and Elizabeth Ann Waller, was born October 1, 1848 in Union County, Ky. At the Antioch Methodist Church in Union County on May 13, 1874 she was married to Charles Jones Newman by pastor Rev. Peterson Wall. After their marriage her husband farmed near Morganfield for several years and in 1885 moved into Morganfield where he became prominent, having success in several business endeavors. In the book, History of Union County, Ky. (1886), the following biographical notes appeared on Charles J. Newman:

Charles Jones Newman, grocer, of Morganfield, is the son of Charles and Eleanor Evans (Jones) Newman. His father, a Virginian, died in Hancock County, in 1847, and his mother then removed to Jefferson County. She is now living in Louisville. Mr. Newman was born in Hawesville, Hancock County, on September 11, 1846; he received some ten years schooling in Jefferson County, and farmed there until 1869, when he came to Union County, reaching here on January 13, 1869. He bought land here and went to farming, and on May 13, 1874, he married Sarah G. Mason, of Union County, the daughter of Joseph and Elizabeth (Waller) Mason. In September, 1885 he sold his farm and bought out W. P. Armistead, in the Masonic Building, and began selling goods on May 1, 1886. Sarah G. Mason Newman, age 48, died of consumption June 6, 1897. She was buried in the Masonic Cemetery in Morganfield. She and her husband did not have any children. C. J. Newman three years after his wife's death married her sister, Mrs. Camilla (Mason) Sugg, who was a widow of fifteen years. In the Union County newspaper the following article was published subsequent to the death of Sarah Gillum Mason Newman;

Union County Advocate, Morganfield, Ky., June 1897:

Mrs. C. J. Newman Succumbs to the Final Summons.

A sad, but not unexpected death occurred last Sunday morning about 9 o'clock. It was that of Mrs. C. J. Newman. Mrs. Newman had been an invalid for twelve or fifteen years. She was a sufferer from consumption and it was only by the most dilligent care that her life was prolonged as it was. Several weeks ago she began to grow worse, and the loving friends and relatives who watched by her bedside realized that the end was only a matter of a few days. Her remains were buried in the Masonic cemetery Monday morning at eleven o'clock. Burial services were conducted at the grave by Rev. Foster Hayes, of the Methodist church.

Mrs. Newman was the wife of Mr. C. J. Newman, a member of the firm of Newman & Richards and one of our most prominent citizens. She was the sister of Mr. A. W. Mason, of the firm of Mason & Dyer, and of Postmaster John Mason. Mrs. Newman was a member of the Methodist church and lived a consistent Christian life. Though her illness extended through so many years, and the affliction, at times, seemed more than one could bear, yet with that fortitude born of the true spirit of Christianity she bore her suffering without a murmur and awaited the inevitable, confident of finding at last an eternal resting place where sickness and sorrow are no more.

She had many warm friends, notwithstanding her illness necessarily prevented her from participating in the worldly affairs that bring us together, and these, together with her relatives, gathered around the grave last Monday morning to pay their final respects. The floral offerings were liberal and beautiful, silently attesting the high esteem in which she was held by those who knew her best. Death is at all times unwelcome, yet the bereaved husband, relatives and friends should find some consolation in the knowledge that with it came the end of a long illness and the beginning of that beatific life promised all followers of the meek and lowly Jesus.

Camilla Mason, daughter of Joseph A. Mason and Elizabeth Ann Walter, was born October 30, 1850 in Union County, Ky. At her mother's home she married Joel James Sugg, October 21, 1880. Joel Sugg was born March 5, 1846 in Union County, the son of Joel Dupree Sugg and Barbara Ann Davenport. He was a farmer, owning a 307 acre farm in the Uniontown Precinct. Four years after their marriage on September 30, 1884 Joel Sugg died, no children were born of their union. Camilla remained a widow fifteen years and on February 21, 1900 married her brother-in-law, Charles J. Newman, widower of her sister Sarah. C. J. Newman died March 19, 1909. For many years Camilla Mason Newman resided on West Main Street in Morganfield in a house she had built and which in the first part of this century was one of the most beautiful and elegant in the city. The house is opposite the Post Office, one block from the Courthouse, it is the present residence of Mr. A.V. Conway. Camilla Newman died at her home on January 21, 1940 at the age of 89. Mason, Morganfield druggist, where they remained until 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, when funeral services were held at the Methodist church, with Rev. C.W. Hummel, of Madisonville, in charge. Burial was in the Odd Fellows Cemetery.

Mr. Mason at one time served as a clerk in a dry goods store operated by the late Waller Mason and Jim Dyer. Prior to that time he was in the dry goods business at Russellville, Ky., later going to Olmstead, in Logan County, and afterwards to Erin, Tenn., where Allen Mason, his only survivor, was born.

After being in the dry goods business as a clerk in Morganfield, Mr. Mason became affiliated with the New York Life Insurance Company. He belonged to that company's "100,000 club" and "NYLIC", both honorary branches of the organization.

Mr. Mason was twice wed, first to Lyda Barclay, A daughter, Lide, born to this union, died early in infancy. His second marriage was to Laura B. Sydnor. Three children were born to this union. Arthur, Ruth, and Allen W. Arthur died in infancy, and Ruth died in 1934. Mrs. Mason preceded her husband in death in November 1932.

Mr. Mason had been a familiar figure on the Street here for many years, and was known by both young and old. He was an ardent member of the Morganfield Methodist Church, and quite active in its affairs until failing health impaired his hearing several years ago.

James Madison Mason (1815-1878)

James Madison Meson, son of John Henderson Mason and Elizabeth Jackson, was born March 25, 1815. He may have been born in Henderson County, Ky. In the years of 1815, 1816 & 1817 his father paid the county levy in that county. In 1814 the family must have resided the greater part of that year in Breckinridge County, since John H. Mason was identified by the tax collector there. Also, in June 1814 when the Breckinridge County court appointed John H. Mason's father, Joseph Mason, to serve as the judge of the next election to be held in August at the election precinct of Lewis' Settlement, John H. Mason was designated to be his clerk. John H. Mason must have left Breckinridge County and went to Henderson County between the second half of 1814 and the first half of 1815. James M. Mason may have been born in either place depending on whether the family made the trip just before or after his birth.

James Madison Mason was born in the second term of James Madison, the fourth president of the United States and one of the fathers of the American Constitution and Bill of Rights. He was probably named with that in mind and also because he had an uncle and great uncle named James Mason. His great uncle, James Mason, was a celebrated public official of Botetourt County, Va., who had died seven years before. James M.'s uncle, James Mason, and his father, John H. Mason, appear to have been very close. In 1810 when John H. Mason was in Ohio County, Ky., appearing there in that year's census, his brother James does also, enumerated only a few households away. In 1811 when John H. Mason returned to Breckinridge County so does James. The two brothers last appear in the tax records of Breckinridge County in 1814 and the next year appear together in Henderson County. Several years afterwards four of the children of John H. Mason went to reside in Union County, Ky., where their uncle James Mason lived.

The early youth of James M. Mason was spent in Ohio County, Ky. At the age of 15 in 1830 he was still living with his parents at their home in Ohio County. Sometime between then and about the age of 21 he left his home in Ohio County. For 1836, the year he was of legal age and first a tax paying citizen, the tax book of Ohio County is missing. In 1837 and thereafter he does not pay taxes in Ohio County and evidently was no longer a resident. In the 1840 census of Ohio County there is not a male of his age listed in his father's home.

James M. Mason before turning to farming spent several years in the mercantile business. From about 1839 through 1847 he was involved in several such ventures. Operating mercantile stores in Union County at Uniontown, in Hancock County, and also possibly in Breckinridge County,

In 1839 he resided in Breckinridge County. In the 1839 tax list of Breckinridge County he is listed and immediately following his name is the listing "Mason, Pate & Co.", a store assessed at having a value of $2000. Living in the county at the time where his uncles, Hopkins, Henderson, Joseph and Samuel Mason. In the 1839 tax list the brothers were grouped together whereas James and the listing of "Mason, Pate & Co." appears in a different part of the listing, strongly suggesting that the store would have been associated with James and not any of his uncles.

In the next year, 1840v James Mason is in Hancock County, Ky. He is listed as "James Mason & Co." in the 1840 Hancock County tax list, he was operating a store valued at $2175 and he had a total property assessment of $2675. He is not listed as a head of a household in the 1840 Hancock County census. He may have been living with his uncle, William Mason, his closest relative in the county; if so his name would not have appeared in the census and he would be represented only by a tally in his respective age category. In the household of William Mason is listed a male in the age category of 20 to 30, James Mason would have then been 25. William Mason had no children of his own, he did have a step-son, John W. Brockman, of about the same age as James, but he is listed elsewhere in the 1840 Hancock County census, and thus the male residing with William could well be his nephew, James.

In July of 1841 an indictment of illegal peddling was delivered by the commonwealth of Kentucky against James Mason and he was ordered to answer the charges in the October term of the Hancock County Circuit Court at Hawesville. The charge reads. "peddling and retailing goods, wares, and merchandise in this state without license". Thomas Blincoe, Redmond F. Munday and Weden Wilson, all highly respected citizens of Hancock County, were summoned to appear in his behalf, the latter was two years later elected sheriff of the county. On October 26, 1841 the case was tried and the jury returned the verdicts "Having no positive evidence of selling between Louisville & here, we find the defendant not guilty." James Mason does not appear in the 1841 Hancock County tax list (he does not appear again there until 1846 after which he became a permanent resident), but during part of 1841 he must have been in the county by the fact the charges and summons in the preceding case were issued there.

In Hancock County on October 18, 1842 James M. Mason married Nancy Munday Blincoe, daughter of Thomas and Rachel Munday Blincoe of Hancock County. When they met is not known but their families had connections going back over thirty, years. Their grandfathers, Joseph Mason and Benjamin Blincoe, both served as magistrates on the Breckinridge County Court; on January 19, 1818 Joseph Mason succeeded Benjamin Blincoe as sheriff of Breckinridge County; and for several years they jointly served as election judges at the elections held in the precinct of Lewis' Settlement. James Mason's great uncle, William Henderson, and his children, including Elizabeth wife of William Mason and Isabelle wife of Hopkins Mason, both aunts and uncles of James, had been close neighbors and friends of the Blincoes for about twenty years. James and Nancy Mason were married by Henry W. Hughes, a minister who resided in Hawesville. Bond on their marriage was by her father, Thomas Blincoe.

Following their marriage James M. and Nancy Mason, along with his brother, Joseph Allen Mason, moved to Union County, Ky. They first appear in the Union County tax records in .1843, and must have made the trip between James' marriage in October of 1842 and mid 1843. After arriving in Union County James and Joseph were partners in operating a store in Uniontown. On April 15, 1846 a deed was recorded in Union County whereby "James Mason and his wife Ann Munday Mason of Uniontown" sold to Joseph A. Mason of Uniontown his half interest in their Uniontown lot for $450 (deed book I. page 115). Soon after recording the deed James and Nancy moved back to Hancock County where James is listed in the 1846 tax records. They had stayed in Union County about three years, during that time their first two children were born. Vetur Elizabeth was born on October 16, 1843 (no other supporting proof of her birth taking place in Union County was found) and Richard Womack was born on April 26, 1845, in an obituary of Richard it is stated he was born in Union County, James' brother, Joseph A. Mason, remained in Union County making it his permanent home.

In 1846 and 1847 after returning to Hancock County, James M. Mason owned and operated a store, on which he was assessed and paid taxes in each of those years. After 1847 his interests turned to farming. In January of 1847 his father-in-law, Thomas Blincoe, died. He left three children, Nancy Munday Mason, and two minor children, Virginia about 18 and William Munday age 16. James Mason was appointed guardian of the two minor children. Thomas Blincoe also left an estate of ten slaves and a prosperous farm of 200 acres, James Mason stepped into the position of operating the Blincoe plantation. At the sale of the estate of Thomas Blincoe on March 5, 1847 James Mason paid $100 for the rent of the farm (Hancock County will book 2, page 314). At the sale he also purchased a bible, cultivator, plow, ox cart, log chain, spade, saddle bags, press, sugar chest, bedsted, flat iron, kettle, oven, coffeepot and cups, loom, lot spun yarn, two bee hives, lots of hogs and fowl, a yoke oxen, two cows, two sorrel horses, and various quantities of corn, lard, oats, fodder and pork. Among various inventories and notes of the Thomas Blincoe estate filed by the administrator, Dr. Timothy Holmes, in July 1849 was the following note: "The farm for 1848 was rented to James Mason for certain improvements to be made on the house and farm" (Hancock County will book 2, page 396). In the division of the ten slaves owned by Thomas Blincoe, James Mason and his wife Nancy received Leonard, an adult male, Tempy, a girl about twenty, and Green, a boy of about 12 (filed March 31, 1849 Hancock County will book 2, page 376). The girl, Tempy, was a servant to Nancy Blincoe Mason and later to her daughter, Vetur Mason Pierce, and was buried in the Mason-Blincoe family cemetery, her marker reads "Tempa Blincoe, born July 4, 1829, died August 15, 1879."

Nancy Munday Mason's father, Thomas Blincoe, served in several official positions soon after the formation of Hancock County. In 1829 he was appointed constable and in 1831 an inspector of tobacco for the county at the tobacco warehouse of Thomas Willian near Troy Landing. He was born February 18, 1797 and died January 17, 1847. He and his wife, Rachel Munday Blincoe, are buried in the Mason-Blincoe Cemetery in Hancock County. Thomas Blincoe's parents, Benjamin Blincoe and Elizabeth Stark, are probably also buried in the same cemetery. Benjamin Blincoe having purchased the farm on which the cemetery is located in 1813. Benjamin Blincoe came to what was then Breckinridge County from Nelson County, Ky. shortly after 1800. In 1807 he was appointed a justice of the Breckinridge County court, served as sheriff of Breckinridge County 1813-1817, and died in 1825. Four years after his death Hancock County was created and his farm about five miles northwest of Hawesville became part of the new county. Benjamin and his brother, Thomas, owned adjoining farms. The land for the New Chapel, M.E. Church (a short distance from the James Mason farm) was originally part of the Thomas Blincoe farm; the heirs of Thomas (died 1825) donated the land for the church, deed recorded April 1, 1836 in Hancock County deed book 2, page 238. Benjamin and Thomas were sons of Thomas Blincoe, Sr. who died in 1806 in Loudon County, Va., and Lattice Bead; and great-great grandsons of James Blincoe who came to America with Captain John Lee on June 8, 1671. Their great-grandfather, John Blincoe died in 1723, his wife Rebecca in 1756; and their grandfather, James Blincoe died on March 3, 1759 in Northumberland County, Va., and his wife Ann in 1781.

Nancy Munday Mason's mother, Rachel Munday Blincoe, born about 1790 died November 16, 1836, was the daughter of William Munday who died in 1815. He was a descendant of Reuben Munday one of the first settlers of Virginia. William Munday wrote his will April 16, 1814, it was probated September 18, 1815 and recorded Breckinridge County will book 1, page 11. In his will he names eight children - Rachel, Betsy, Ann, Nathaniel, James, Robert, William and George Munday. Ann Munday never married and died in 1835 in Hancock County. James died before 1829 leaving children: Ann, Jane, Elizabeth, Delina, Margaret, Susan and Redmond F. Munday; born February 1773 married wife, Mildred, August 10, 1796. Redmond F. Munday, son of James and Mildred, married Margaret Linn Hamilton, daughter of Andrew Hamilton and Sarah Russell. He died at the age of 34 on September 30, 1845 and is buried in the Hamilton Cemetery about one-half mile northwest of Hawesville. Also buried there are his wife, Martha Linn, born October 29, 1816, died July 16, 1865, and his three children; Sarah F. died aged 26 days April 2, 1845; Martha R. died aged 8 weeks July 20, 1846; and James Andrew Munday born August 15, 1843 and died Mar. 18, 1918 at Vancouver, Wash. James A. Munday was a lawyer of Hawesville and Owensboro, Ky. He founded the newspaper, Owensboro Messenger, the predecessor of the Owensboro Messenger- Inquirer, the present newspaper of Owensboro, Ky. He was elected a Kentucky state senator representing Daviess and McLean Counties, as well as holding several other high positions in Hancock and Daviess Counties. James A. Munday was a second cousin of the children of James and Nancy Mason and also his aunt, Sarah Hamilton, married. Henry W. Mason a brother of James M. Mason. The following biography of James A. Munday appeared in the History of Daviess County, Kentucky (Inter-State Publishing Co., Chicago, 1883, pp203-204):

Hon. James A. Munday, born in Hancock County, Ky., August 14, 1843, was a son of Redmond and Martha L. (Hamilton) Munday. His father was a descendant of Reuben Munday, one of the first settlers of Virginia. He came to Kentucky when a young man, and was married here. He had a family of two daughters and one son, the daughters both deceased. He died when his son was two years old. After the death of his father James A. and his mother moved to Hawesville, where he attended school till fourteen years of age. He then entered Greenville Academy, at that time flourishing under the presidency of Hon. Edward Rumsey, and superintendence of James K. Patterson, present President of the Kentucky State College. He afterward attended the Georgetown College, his junior year being interrupted by the political troubles preceding the war, on account of which the school was discontinued. Mr. Munday then returned home, and in August, 1862, after several, unsuccessful attempts, succeeded in reaching the Confederate lines and enlisted in Company H, Tenth Kentucky Confederate Cavalry, under command of Captain H. C. Meriweather. The regiment was afterward assigned to General Morgan's command, in all the engagements and movements of which he took an active part. He was in a few months promoted to a Lieutenancy for soldierly conduct, and when Captain Meriweather was detailed for other duty, he took charge of the company, in which capacity he did much service as a scout. His company and another under his command were assigned to the advance of the Second Brigade on General Morgan's memorable invasion of Indiana and Ohio, and were among the first to charge and carry the breast-works of Corydon. After the most remarkable ride on record his command was foiled in its attempts to recross the river at Buffington Island, Ohio, and in attempting to rally a few men and assist in covering a retreat, he with several of his regiment were surrounded and captured, and taken to Johnson's Island. The Government having determined on special severity with those who had dared to invade "the sacred soil," sent half of General Morgan's officers to the Ohio penitentiary, and the other half to the western penitentiary of Pennsylvania at Allegheny, holding them as exempt from the cartel of exchange. After eight months of close confinement, Mr. Munday with his fellow officers were transferred to Point Lookout, and afterward to Fort Delaware. At the close of the war he returned to Hawesville, and soon after his mother was killed by being thrown from a buggy. Hr. Munday attended a course of lectures at the Louisville Law University. On his return home he took charge of the Circuit Clerk's office as Deputy, and the following summer was elected Circuit Clerk - the youngest clerk ever elected in the State. He held the office two years. During the time he was elected Assistant Secretary of the Kentucky Senate. After the expiration of his term of office he commenced the practice of law in Hawesville. In 1870 he came to Owensboro and formed a partnership with Judge George W. Williams. In 1871 he was made Master Commissioner of Daviess County Circuit Court; resigned that office in 1875 and formed a business partnership with Thomas S. Pettit in the manufacture of staves. He sold out in 1879 and became the owner of the Owensboro Monitor office, and established the Owensboro Messenger, a weekly Democratic newspaper, a half interest in which was sold in 1878 to C.W. Bransford. After beginning the publication of the daily in the fall of 1818, it was consolidated with the Examiner, a weekly paper then owned by L. Lumpkin, forming the Owensboro Messenger and Examiner, published weekly and semiweekly. Mr. Munday continued in editorial charge of these papers until the spring of 1881, when he severed his connection with them and engaged in the canvass for Senator in his district, comprising Daviess and McLean counties. He was elected Senator in August, 1881, and took an active part in the legislation of the session of 1881-82. He is a member of the Star Lodge, No. 19, K. of P.; Owensboro Lodge, No. 130, A.F. & A.M., and Owensboro Lode, 1.O.O.F.

Rachel Munday married Thomas Blincoe about 1823 and they had five children: Betsy Ann, Nancy Munday, Susan T., Virginia and William Munday Blincoe. Betsy Ann born about 1824 died April 10, 1839 buried Mason-Blincoe Cemetery, Nancy Munday born May 3, 1825 married James Madison Mason and they had twelve children. Susan T. born about 1826 died February 29, 1836 buried Mason-Blincoe Cemetery. Virginia born about 1828 married Levi Smith on May 14, 1850, in Hancock County, she died between 1860 and 1868, she had three children, Belle. William and Mollie Smith. Her husband, Levi Smith, born November 2, 1823 died June 1, 1910 is buried in the Lewisport Cemetery in Hancock County; he married second Camilla L. May on October 15, 1868. William Munday Blincoe, born December 7, 1830, married Henrietta O'Bannon, on May 9, 1855 in Hancock County, she was the daughter of Cuthbert and Almedia O'Bannon. Cuthbert S. Blincoe, son of William and Henrietta, is buried in the Mason-Blincoe Cemetery, born February 23, 1858 and died October 25, 1860. William Munday Blincoe died December 19, 1909 in Evansville, Indiana and was buried in the Mason-Blincoe Cemetery in Hancock County; he had no surviving children. He was a widely known riverboat Captain on the Ohio River, and the following obituary appeared in both the Evansville and Owensboro newspapers:

Evansville Courier, Evansville, IN, Monday, 1 20 December 1909:

Oldest Steamboat Man In Port Dies

Captain Blincoe Passes Away at Marine Hospital

Flat-Boated in Early Life

Captain William Blincoe, an old and well-known steamboat captain and pilot, died at the U.S. Marine hospital yesterday morning.

Captain Blincoe was 79 years of age and was probably the oldest steamboat man of this part. He was born and raised on a farm a short distance above Lewisport, Ky., and when a young man, entered his career on the river as a flatboat pilot between Louisville and New Orleans. After serving in this line of work for some years he began his life as steamboat pilot and served in that capacity on various boats, principally on the Ohio river between Louisville and Cairo, and has for many years made his home in this city. He also commanded various steamers in the Evansville and Cannelton trade.

For several years he has been in declining health, and five months ago was attacked by serious throat troubles in addition to other ailments incident to old age, and has since been under treatment at the marine hospital where his vitality gradually gave way, resulting in his death at 8:30 o'clock yesterday morning.

Two nieces, Mrs. Ira Cult (sic, should be Culp), of this city, and Mrs. Frank Stein, of Pittsburg, were his only relatives, but had a host of friends, especially members of the river fraternity, who held him in high esteem for his many good qualities.

His remains were taken to Smith's morgue and prepared for burial, and tomorrow morning will be taken to Lewisport where the burial will take place in the family burial ground near that place. (Same article appeared in the Owensboro Messenger on Tuesday, December 21).

James and Nancy Blincoe Mason inherited one-third interest in her father, Thomas 200 acre farm, when he died in 1847. They became sole owners of the farm when they bought the interests of the other two heirs; Virginia Blincoe Smith and William M. Blincoe, soon after each reached the age of 21. On August 12, 1850 James Mason purchased the one-third share of Virginia Smith for $666 (Hancock County deed book 4, page 385); and on December 8, 1851 the one-third share of William M. Blincoe for $666, one day after his 21st birthday (Hancock County deed book 5, page 212).

Thomas Blincoe had inherited one-eighth interest in the farm following the death of his father, Benjamin Blincoe, in 1825; and later acquired the other seven heirs interests. When Hancock County was still part of Breckinridge County on March 22, 1813, Benjamin Blincoe bought the 200 acre tract from John and Hannah Lewis for $400 (Breckinridge County deed book D, page 286), John Lewis had bought the land on October 25, 1809 from David Meade Sr. of Jessamine County, Ky. (Breckinridge County deed book B, page 516). The 200 acres was part of 2000 acres on the Ohio River granted to Samuel Beall by patent dated August 30, 1787, adjoining and above a tract patented in name of Robert Morris of 2000 acres including mouth of old fortification creek, where Little Yellow Banks now town of Lewisport is located and where John Lewis, a surveyor and large land speculator, settled in 1799; adjoining and below a tract of 6000 acres patented by John May; and directly above a 3000 acre tract patented in the name of Samuel Beall. The 2000 acre patent of Samuel Beall, of which James Mason's farm is part, is shown on an 1806 map included in the circuit court suit of May, Bannister & Co. versus the heirs of George Mason et al, on file in Ohio County, Ky. On July 14, 1800 in settling the estate of Samuel Beal dec'd, the 2000 acres was conveyed to David Meade (Ky. Court of Appeals deed book F, p,210), the land descended successively from Samuel Beall to David Meade to John Lewis to Benjamin Blincoe to Thomas Blincoe to James Mason and upon his death to his children.

James Mason was one of the most successful and prosperous farmers of Hancock County. In 1860 just before the outbreak of the Civil War, his property value was among the top two dozen in the county. The 1860 census shows his total real and personal property valued at $19,636. In the 1860 tax list he is shown as owning: the 200 acre farm (valued at $5000), one lot in Hawesville (he had purchased lot #55 on April 10, 1856), 6 slaves (valued at $5000), 7 horses, 20 cattle, 40 hops, 5 tons of hay, 1600 bushels of corn, and 400 bushels of wheat.

The years of 1861-1865 were hard times for the family of James Mason. Besides the hardships of having a son serving in the war and the other divisiveness, deprivations and hardships of wartime, five members of the immediate family of James Mason died during the war years. His sister, Elvira Mason Duke died January 15, 1861; his uncle, William Mason died December 18, 1861; his father, John H. Mason died September 2, 1863; a son-in-law, William W. Pierce died 1863-1864 in the Confederate Army; and his mother, Elizabeth Jackson Mason died December 17, 1865. His father's death occurred in Hancock County and he was the first member of the Mason family buried in the family cemetery on his son, James Mason's, farm; originally the Blincoe burying grounds later known as the Mason-Blincoe Cemetery. James Mason's mother died at the home of his brother, Joseph A. Mason, near Morganfield in Union County, she was buried there, possibly because of the distance and the onset of winter.

James Mason and his uncle, William Mason, were very close, not only in terms of proximity but also in affection. Having no children of his own William Mason's affections seemed to have been given to his nephew, James Mason. When William Mason wrote his will on November 1, 1854 he chose James to be the executor of his estate following the death of his wife, and when he added a codicil to his will four days before his death on December 14, 1861 he again specified the same (Hancock County will book 4, page 43). The first line of the codicil to his will reads "I give and bequeath to my nephew, James Mason, my gold watch", no doubt the watch not only had a monetary value but also had a very personal and sentimental value as a keepsake and heirloom. After William Mason's death his widow, Elizabeth Henderson Mason, renounced her right as executrix and James Mason was appointed on February 20, 1862 the administrator of his estate, a duty he faithfully carried out according to the desires of his uncle. Over the next twelve years many official documents were recorded in the records of Hancock County, in both the county court and circuit court, whereby James Mason performed various duties as administrator of William Mason's estate.

James Madison Mason and Nancy Munday Blincoe were the parents of twelve children, all of whom lived to their maturity, they were:

Nancy Blincoe Mason at the age of 48 departed this life on April 12, 1874, and James M. Mason joined his wife on January 17, 1878, he was 62 years of age. They were interred in the family cemetery on their farm. They were survived by their twelve children, in addition, Nancy Mason was survived by her brother, William M. Blincoe, and James Mason by one brother, Jackson Mason, and three sisters, Jane Ellis, Mary Mason, Mag Harris. They lived to see only three of their children enter into married life. Of the unions of Vetura Pierce, Richard Mason and Kate Myers eight children had been born at the death of James Mason, they were: Maud Pierce, Mag Ella Mason, George Mason, Emma Mason, Hugh Myers, Nellie Myers, James Myers and Paul Myers. In the following years twenty more grandchildren of James and Nancy Mason were born, several of whom died in infancy or their youth.

The following obituary of James M. Mason was published in the Owensboro, Ky. newspaper:

Owensboro Messenger, Owensboro, Ky., Wednesday, 23 January 1878:

Death of James Mason, Esq.

Mr. James Mason, a prominent citizen of Hancock, died on the night of the 17th inst. at his residence in the country between Lewisport and Hawesville, at the age of sixty-five. Mr. Mason was a successful farmer, whose excellent management was to be seen about a home which was the abode not only of good order, but also of genuine hospitality. He was besides a man of general information and ability whose opinions met with the highest respect. He was a consistent member of the Baptist church, and was widely known, and connected in Daviess and Ohio as well as his own county. Many friends, especially in this region of the state, will hear with surprise and deep regret that this good and stalwart citizen has been stricken down at a time when he seemed to have the assurance of many years of useful and happy life. He leaves a large family, who valued his precepts and example and will sadly mourn his loss.

A memorial of the love of his children for their father is the following inscription on James Mason's monument:

A man who was true to his convictions with the courage to support them has lain down his life in the unwavering hope of heaven. In life a good true and noble man in death a patient steadfast christian and in eternity we do believe a glorified spirit.

James Mason wrote his will August 24, 1877, it was probated January 28, 1878 and recorded Hancock County will book 4, page 223. In it his primary concern was for the education of his younger children, the five youngest, still being minors. He set forth several steps for achieving this, including the immediate sale of all his personal property, the reinvestment of the proceeds and the rental of his lands. He specified that none of his lands were to be sold or divided until the youngest child reached the age of 21, in order that the continuing income from the land could be reapplied to their education. The youngest child, Charles, was age 13 at the time of his father's death, he reached the age of 21 on August 3, 1885. Shortly afterwards the heirs sought out Samuel G. Hughes, Joseph L. Greathouse and David T. Beauchamp to act as commissioners in, devising a division of the lands of James Mason, and D. L. Adair was appointed surveyor to act with the commission. One son, Thomas B. Mason, passed away four years after his father on April 10, 1881 at the age of 23. Another son, Richard W. Mason, before the division of his father's land sold his one-eleventh interest on September 17, 1885, to the other heirs in consideration of his debts to the estate (Hancock County deed book 23, page 2), On October 17, 1885 a report of the commissioners was recorded in Hancock County Division of Lands book and a deed of partition enacting the division was recorded on October 26, 1885 in deed book 23, page 62. Division of Lands of James Mason, Hancock County Division of Lands Book, pp. 182-185; October 17, 1885:

October 17th 1885 - D.L. Adair, Sur.

The division of James Mason's lands involved three tracts: the Blincoe or Home tract, 200 acres, on which James Mason lived; the Pierce tract, 181 acres, adjoining Blincoe tract on east; and the Curtis tract, 118½ acres, adjoining parts of Blincoe and Pierce tracts on the south. In the 100 years since the Division 69 deeds involving the above lands have been recorded in Hancock County. In the following history of each lot in the Division all deeds referred to are recorded in Hancock County, deed book and page numbers are given.

The Blincoe tract James Mason and wife Nancy inherited one-third of this tract in 1847 and purchased the other two shares in 1850 and 1851 (see preceding pages for earlier history, 1787-1851, of the Blincoe tract). In the division the Blincoe tract was divided into lot Nos. 2, 3, 4, 5, and part of 6, and was granted to Robert Mason, Mary R. Pate, Nannie Chambers, James M. Mason and Michael A. Mason. Fourteen acres of lot No. 6, extending down along west side of Troy-New Chapel Road, was in the Blincoe tract and the remaining 52 acres on the east side of the road were from the Pierce tract. The James Mason home and the Mason-Blincoe Cemetery were in Division lot No. 3, near what is called "the forks of the road" in the Division, and just behind the present residences of Charles Allen Taylor and James and Claribel Phillips in the bend of what is now called the Muddy Gut Road.

The lines of the Pierce tract, that part of which was involved in the Division was part of a 309 acre tract previously owned by William G. Fierce of Trimble County, Ky. William G. Pierce had purchased the 309 acres from Robert L. Pottinger on Apr. 4, 1854 (book 7..p. 9), was conveyed to Pottinger by James B. Redd on August 14, 1851 (book 5, p.146), to Redd by Thomas T. Shreve on April 14, 1849 (book 4, p.225), to Shreve by James A. and Joseph Monks, heirs of Richard Monks, on March 15, 1847 (book 3, p.538), to Richard Monks by James Monks on August 27, 1831 (book 1, p.215), to James Monks by the heirs of John Lewis, and was part of the original 2000 acre survey patented in the name of Samuel Beall on August 30, 1787. Another 132½ acres of the Pierce tract was north of Division lot No. 1. and extended all the way to the banks of the Ohio River to a point nearly opposite Troy, Indiana. At the time of the James Mason land division in 1885 this part of the Pierce tract was owned by Vetura Mason Pierce and was not involved in the division.

William W. Pierce, son of William G. Pierce, married Vetura E. Mason, daughter of James and Nancy, in 1861. On March 13, 1862 Mary F., widow of William G. Pierce, and his other heirs transferred to William W. Pierce one-third interest in the 309 acre tract owned by his father (book 11, p.222). The remaining shares in the William G. Pierce tract were subsequently purchased by James Mason. On March 21, 1864 James Mason bought the interest of Elizabeth (Pierce) wife of O. P. Spillman of Carroll County, Ky. (book 12, p.214). On April 14, 1869 he purchased the interest of Lydia (Pierce) wife of F. A. Adams, John B. Pierce and wife Edmonia, Jean (Pierce) wife of Joseph Miller, all of Trimble County, Ky., and Jane (Pierce) wife of Jefferson Button of Oldham County, Ky. (book 14, p.467). On September 26, 1873 Ophelia R. (Pierce) wife of Moses Kirkpatrick of Oldham County, Ky. sold her interest to James Mason (book 17, p.18).

William W. Pierce was killed during the Civil War leaving as his heirs, his wife Vetura Mason Pierce, and one child Willie Maud Pierce, who was put under the guardianship of James Mason. On October 13, 1876 James Mason recorded a deed (book 18, p.178) whereby he divided the Pierce tract in order to give his daughter, Vetura Pierce, and her child Maud Pierce, their shares owned by their husband and father, it being one-third of six-sevenths of the whole tract (note, in the deed the Pierce tract is referred to as being 322 acres whereas in earlier deeds was listed as being 309 acres). He added to this share land in the value of $337.37 which was money due them from the estate of William W. Pierce, owned by him in Thimble County, Ky. James Mason stated "Wishing to give the said widow and child enough land adjoining their interest and the land bought with the money before mentioned to make a comfortable farm" do thus convey 92 acres of the entire tract to them, "it being the most valuable part of the tract along the river". At the same time James Mason "for love and affection" deeded to them another 42½ acres adjoining the above, which was worth $972 and was an advancement to them from the distribution of his estate and was to be thus charged. The total 132½ acres was the part of the Pierce tract lying between the river and a line run across said tract from the N.E. corner of the Mason farm (Blincoe tract). In her father's land division in 1885 Vetura Pierce received an additional 18 acres adjoining the 132½ acres she already owned, making a farm of 150½ acres. In the 1885 division the remaining lands of the Pierce tract were received by Michael A. Mason (52 acres of lot No. 6), Henry Mason (lot No. 7, 41 acres) and Kate Myers (lot No. 8, 76 acres).

The third tract of the Division, known as the Curtis tract consisted of 178½ acres purchased by James Mason from Isaac William Curtis of Massac County, Ill. on May 19, 1866 (book 13, p.368). He paid $1787.50 for the land, it was bounded by parts of the Blincoe and Pierce tracts on the north, on the west by William S. Bates, on east by Frederick D. Lewis, and on south by the Thompson's Landing Road, now Highway 1605. In the Division the Curtis tract was divided into Lot Nos. 9 and 10 and was granted to Maggie Kelly and Charles M. Mason.

Lot No. 1

Lot No. 1, 18 acres, was granted to Vetura Pierce. She died on January 10, 1910 in Evansville, Ind. and the land was inherited by her daughter, Maud Pierce Culp. On March 15, 1911 Maud and her husband, Ira Culp, of Evansville, Ind. sold the lot of 18 acres as well as the other 132 acres of the Pierce tract adjoining it on the north, to Teda B. Lawson, wife of P. S., of Hancock County for $1.00 and other considerations (book 43, p.209). March 13, 1947 Teda B. Lawson sold right of way for the Hawesville-Lewisport Road through the land. Teda B. Lawson's will was probated May 8, 1950, she left two heirs, Russell S. and Julian Keith Lawson. November 22, 1978 Julian Keith Lawson, Jr., of Raleigh, N.C., Thomas Sawyer Lawson, of Silver Springs, Md., Ann Sage (Lawson) wife of torn Evans, Lewisport, Ky. and Russell S. Lawson of Lewisport, Ky., the heirs of Teda B. Lawson, sold 144.68 acres of the 150 ½ acre tract for $571,200 to Bruce Stephen, Jr., trustee, under a trust agreement between South-East Coal Co. and Kentucky River Coal Corporation (book 88, p.300). The land has since been transferred to Inland Gulf Terminal Ass, of Columbus, Ohio, which is the present owner, the company had purchased it for the purpose of building a coal refinery, but no construction has been done on the land and it is presently rented as farm land.

Lots Nos .2 & 3

Lot No.2, 70 ¼ acres, was granted to James M. Mason. On October 17, 1870 James M. Mason, then a resident of Clear Creek, Colorado, sold the 70¼ acres to his brother, Richard Mason, for $1000 (book 25, p.102). Richard W. Mason and his wife, Mary, sold the lot on October 2, 1897 to Mrs. Julia A. Robb for the same price (book 29, p.69). Mrs. Julia A. Robb, a widow, sold lot No. 2 to Sallie D. Street for $650 on February 13, 1901 (book 31, p.154).

Lot No. 3, 27 acres, was allotted to Mary R. Pate, two months after she received the land she and her husband, Eli W. Pate, sold the lot to her brother, Richard Mason, for $1400 on December 15, 1885 (book 23, p.139). Richard W. and Mary Mason on February 5, 1901 sold lot No. 3 to Sallie D. Street for $1350 (book 31, p.155), seven days later the same Sallie D. Street purchased lot No. 2, and lots No. 2 & 3 were subsequently sold and resold together.

Sallie D. Street and husband, W. Dud Street, sold Lot No. 2 (70 ¼ acres) and lot No. 3 (27 acres) to Henry M. Rice on July 5, 1906 for $2650 (book 34, p.531). Henry M. Rice purchased another 35 acres that adjoined the above Mason-Blincoe land on the West, was part of the David Reid farm, he bought it from the Reid heirs on March 27, 1907 (book 35, p.212). Henry M. Rice died June 24, 1920, willing above lands to wife, Gelania, she died June 30, 1927 and land descended to their two children, Hubert Rice and Helen Rice McDaniel (book 50, p.487 & 489). Hubert Rice sold his interest to his sister, Helen McDaniel, on February 10, 1930 (book 50, p.483), for $3000. Helen and husband, Harvey McDaniel on September 29, 1941 sold to Powers Emmick the 35 acres that was part of the Reid division of 1904 (division book, p.284), (book 56, p.116). On October 1, 1945 the heirs of Helen McDaniel sold to Charles W. Henning for $1.00 and other considerations 100 acres having the same boundaries as lots No. 2 &3 in the James Mason land division (book 57, p.610). On December 26, 1962 Charles W. Henning and wife, Anna Tom, sold 1.14 acres out of Lot No. 3 to his daughter, Claribel and her husband, James R. Phillips, for $1.00 (book 67, p.359) located on the Muddy Gut Road about one mile from its Intersection with Highway 334 (Hawesville-Lewisport Road). On July 3, 1974 Anna Tom, widow of Charles W. Henning, sold to James R. and Claribel Phillips for $1.00 another 2.73 acres adjoining above, giving them 3.87 acres out of lot No. 3 (book 80, p.709). The remaining acreage of Lots No. 2 .& 3, about 96 acres, was sold by the heirs of Charles W. Henning, his widow Anna Tom and daughter, Claribel and her husband, James R. Phillips on December 12, 1974 to Charles Allen Taylor for $1.00. Mr. Taylor and the Phillipps are present

Four of the children sold their interest in tract to Edith, wife, of John Allen Thrasher (one of sons), on December 8, 1945 (book 58, p.86). On July 9, 1947 at a public auction Edith Thrasher became purchaser of the remainder of the tract (book 59, p.296). On December 22, 1976 Edith Thrasher, a widow, sold lot No. 9, 108½ acres to Robert B. Lee for $45,000 (book 84, p.747). Robert B. Lee is the present owner of the tract and resides in Owensboro, Ky.

Lot No. 10

Lot No, 10, 70 acres, was granted to Charles M. Mason, He sold it to Jasper Newton Tongate for $800 on December 18, 1889 (book 24, p.593). On February 27, 1890 Jasper N. Tongate sold the land to Joseph L. Greathouse, Sr. for $850 (book 25, p.5). Joseph L. Greathouse died in 1891 leaving a will (will book 4, p.350) by which he devised the above lard to his nine children. Between 1914 and 1919 Harry C. Greathouse, a son of W. B., and grandson of Joseph L., acquired all nine shares in the 70 acres (books 40-218, 43-6, 43-8, 43-163, 43-267, 43-618, 45-118 & 45-120). On January 17, 1948 Harry C. Greathouse sold the 70 acres to Samuel C. Ayers for $1000 (book 59, p.579). Samuel C. Ayers sold the same to Billy Joe Sadler on February 26, 1975 for $1.00 (book 81, p.670). Billy Joe Sadler for $1.00 on February 22, 1980 sold 44.78 acres of lot No. 10 to Robert B. Lee, its present owner who is also the owner of all of Lot No. 9 of the James Mason land division. The remaining 22.22 acres of lot No, 10 is still owned by Billy Joe Sadler.

Vetura Elizabteh Masow was the first of twelve children born to James Madison Mason and Nancy Munday Blincoe, Born October 16, 1843 her birth occurred during the three years her parents resided in Union County, Ky. At the age of two her parents returned to Hancock County, where she grew to maturity and resided most of her life.

When she was 17 years old Vetura E. Mason married William W. Pierce. They were married on October 1, 1861 in Hancock County by James E. Stone, a United Baptist minister associated with the Hawesville Baptist Church, and also the noted and long time county court clerk of Hancock County. William W. Pierce was from Bedford, Ky., the county seat of Trimble County. The son of William G. Pierce and Mary F. Gatewood he was born July 16, 1826 in Oldham County, Ky. His father, William G. Pierce, had owned the land bordering the James Mason farm on the east since 1854. William W. Pierce does not appear as a tax paying resident in the records of Hancock County. At the time of his marriage he had not been in Hancock County long, in the preceding year he is listed in the 1860 census of Trimble County living with his father in the town of Bedford. In the census his occupation is listed as a merchant. It appears likely that while conducting business regarding his father's land in Hancock County he met and courted Vetura Mason.

William G. Pierce, father of William W., was born in 1798 in Washington County, Ky. He was the oldest of six children born to John Pierce, a native of New Jersey, and Jane Graves, a native of Virginia, who married in Washington County, Ky. on January 7, 1797. His grandparents were Thomas and Lydia Pierce (Pearce) and William and Sarah Graves. Thomas Pierce died in 1793 in Washington County, Ky. William G. Pierce married Mary F. Gatewood in Oldham County, Ky. on December 2, 1824. In 1837 when the county of Trimble was formed from Oldham, Henry and Gallatin Counties William G. Pierce was a resident of the new county. In the 1850 Trimble County census he is listed as being a tavern keeper in Bedford, in the 1860 Thimble County census his occupation appears as that of a farmer.

William G. Pierce died between the 1860 census and March 13, 1862 when his widow and seven of his surviving children recorded a deed in Hancock County transferring to his son, William W. Pierce, one-third interest in the farm of 309 acres owned by him in Hancock County (book 11, p.222).

The brothers and sisters of William W. Pierce were: John B. (born c1825, 1869 lived Trimble County, Ky.), Sarah Jane (born c1830, married Jefferson Button, 1869 lived Oldham County, Ky.), Elizabeth S. (born c1832, married Oliver P. Spillman, 1870 lived Cumberland County, Ill. Lydia A. (born c1835, married. F. A. Adams, 1869 lived Trimble County, Ky.), Joan (?Juan) F. (born c1839, married. Joseph Miller, 1869 lived Trimble County, Ky.), Ophelia R. (born c1843, married. Moses Kirkpatrick, 1873 lived Oldham County, Ky.) and Mary Bartlett Pierce (born c1847, died single between 1862-1870).

William W. Pierce during the Civil War joined the Confederate army. He was commissioned a 2nd lieutenant in Company H of the 4th Kentucky Calvary, CSA. While in the service a daughter, Willie Maud, was born to him and Vetura Mason Pierce in Hancock County on March 10, 1863. Later that year or in the early part of 1864 William W. Pierce was killed in Virginia.

In the settlement of the estate Of William W. Pierce and his father, William G. Pierce, an equity suit was filed in the circuit court of Hancock County by the heirs of William G. Pierce versus Vetura E. Pierce and Willie M. Pierce. Among the papers in the case folder are account ledgers, letters, and receipts of monies paid and received by James Meson in relation to the Pierce estate. Following the death of William W. Pierce, James Mason served as the administrator of his estate and as an agent and representative for V. E. Pierce and her daughter. In the Hancock County court on January 21, 1870 he was appointed legal guardian for his granddaughter, Maud Pierce, at the time she was six years old. Some of the claims and accounts of James Mason, as a representative for his daughter, in the settlement were the following: In 1867 he paid her share of the expenses in the surveying and division of the lands of William. G. Pierce in Trimble County. In 1869 and 1870 he paid revenue tax and county levy on her interest in the Pierce lands in Trimble County. On February 7, 1870 F. A. Adams, administrator of William G. Pierce, sent James Mason $172.50 for the sale of a house and lot in Trimble County. Several receipts dated in the years 1870, 1871 and 1872 showed costs incurred by James Mason in making improvements on the Pierce land in Hancock County. One receipt was a bill of passage on the steamer, Susie Silver, for passage to and return from New Orleans, why this was claimed and its relation to the Pierce estate was not evident. On the next page is a copy of a receipt for the purchase of a monument for $60 from the Muldoon & Co. of Louisville, Ky., it was charged to James Mason the administrator of W. W. Pierce, dec'd. The monument was to be shipped to Bedford in Thimble County and erected on the grave of William W. Pierce, husband of Vetura Mason Pierce. At the top of the page is a copy of an entry in a ledger showing where on April 27, 1871 James Mason at his home paid to F. A. Adams the $60 for the monument; purchased five days earlier, and another $10 for having it erected on the grave.

Between 1864 and 1873 James Mason purchased the other interests in the William G. Pierce land in Hancock County, that part not owned by his son-in-law, William W. Pierce, at the time of his death. On October 13, 1876 James Mason divided the Pierce tract in order to give his daughter, Vetura Pierce, the interest owned by her husband and land in the value of $333.37, the amount due her from his estate in Trimble County. At the same time he deeded to her a gift of 42 acres, the two adjoining tracts totaled 132 ½ acres and extended north from the N.E. corner of the Mason-Blincoe tract to the Ohio River. After her father's death Vetura Pierce in the 1885 division of his lands received another 18 acres (lot No. 1) south of the land she already owned, giving her a farm of 150 ½ acres.

The 1870 Hancock County census shows Vetura Pierce and her daughter, Maud, living in the Lewisport Precinct near her parents. In the census she was enumerated immediately after the home of her parents, she is listed with a different dwelling house number than that of her father's residence. Also at the time a farm laborer, Robert Read, is shown as working for her and residing on her farm. In 1870 she was evidently living in her own house, a very short distance from her parents home, either on her father's farm or on the adjoining Pierce land, She may have been living on the Pierce land, at about the same time James Mason was involved in making several improvements on the land. Among the papers of the Pierce equity suit were receipts bearing the dates of 1870-1872. Showing were James Mason paid to have 21 acres cleared, fence posts made and set and a barn built on the Pierce tract. Following the deaths of her parents she may have moved back to their home to help care for her younger brothers and sisters still at home. When the 1880 Hancock County census was taken Veturia Pierce and her daughter, Maud, were living in the same residence with her brothers and sisters, Robert, Mary, Thomas, Henry, Nannie and Charles Mason,

Following the death of her husband Veturia Mason Pierce remained a widow the rest of her life, On Christmas Eve of 1889 her daughter, Willie Maud Pierce, married Ira Albert Culp in Hancock County.

Owensboro Weekly Messenger, Owensboro, Ky., Thursday, 2 January 1890, p3:

Mr. Ira A. Culp, a member of the Evansville police force, was happily married at 8 o'clock Thursday morning at Hawesville, Ky., to Miss Maud Pierce, of the place, the only daughter of Mrs. V. E. Pierce.

After their marriage Ira and Maud Culp removed to Evansville, Indiana which became their permanent home and where he worked as a mail carrier. Veturia Pierce left Hancock County before 1900 and went to live with her daughter and family in Evansville. On January 6 1910 at the age of 66, Veturia Mason Pierce died at her daughter's residence, 323 Campbell Street in Evansville, Ind. She was survived by her daughter, and the following brothers and sisters: Richard Mason, Henry Mason, and James Mason, all of Hancock County, Ky., Mrs. Kate Myers and Mrs. Nannie Chambers of Owensboro, Ky., Mrs. Maggie Kelly of Daviess County, Ky., Robert Mason, and Charles Mason. Two brothers and a sister had preceded her in death. She was taken back to Hancock County and buried in the Mason-Blincoe Cemetery where her parents and many other relatives had been buried dating back over 85 years. The following notice of her funeral appeared in the Evansville newspaper:

Richard Womack Mason, son of James M. Mason and Nancy M. Blincoe, was born April 26, 1845 in Union County, Ky. All but the first year of his life was spent in Hancock County, Ky. During the Civil War, when only in his teens he served in the Confederate Army.

On February 24, 1870 Richard W. Mason married Mary A. Crockett. They were married at the residence of her brother, William G. Crockett, in Hancock County, the marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. Samuel C. Allen. A native of Franklin County, Ky. Mary A. Crockett was born March 7, 1845. Her parents, Anthony Crockett and Susan Robb were married in Franklin County on August 21, 1833; in the 1860's they brought their family of seven children to Hancock County. Anthony Crockett, born in 1808, died in Hancock County in 1869 as the result of pneumonia. Susan Robb Crockett, the daughter of Frederick Robb and Mary Neet, was born about 1816 in Jessamine County, Ky. Their children were: Anna M. (wife of David T. Beauchamp, she was born December 22, 1836 and died May 11, 1878 in Hancock County); Samuel T. Crockett (born 1838 and died after 1850); Mary A. (wife of Richard W. Mason); William G. Crockett (born September 6, 1847 and died November 5, 1898 in Hancock County, wife Celeste B.), Margaret (wife of J. Q. Adams was born June 15, 1850 and died August 24, 1918 in Hancock County); George R. Crockett born in 1853 and died in 1927, buried at Hawesville, Ky. And James Crockett (born in 1855 and died in 1932, buried at Hawesville, Ky.

Richard W. Mason made his living as a farmer. After his marriage he worked several farms in the Troy Bend area, in the same community in which he had been raised. At the time of the 1870 and 1880 censuses of Hancock County he was residing in the Hawesville Precinct, in the area west of Hawesville and east of his father's farm. In 1881 disaster befell his family when his home was destroyed by fire, the following news item was published in the Cannelton, Indiana newspaper:

Cannelton Enquirer & Reporter, Cannelton, Ind., Thursday, 7 April 1881:

We are sorry to learn that the dwelling of Mr. Dick Meson who resides in Kentucky, opposite Troy, was entirely destroyed by fire one night this week, with all it contained in the way of furniture, wearing apparel and $200 in money. This is a severe loss to Mr. Mason.

Richard Mason was forced to borrow money from his father's estate. Due to his debts to the estate in 1885 one month before the division of his father's lands he sold his interest (1/11) to his brothers and sisters (deed book 23, p. 2). In the division his name does not appear but he did however own some of his father's farm. At the time of the division he already owned 1 ½ acres and was probably residing there at the time of the division. Located on the Muddy Gut Road, he in 1899 exchanged it with N. B. and Nannie Chambers for another 1½ acres on the opposite side of the road (book 31, p.38). Seven weeks after the James Mason land division Richard W. Mason bought lot No. 3 of the division from his sister, Mary R. Pate (book 23, p.139). He paid $300 in cash and gave a note for another $1100. The lot of 27 acres included his parents' old home place, and here he and his family lived until 1901. He gave his brother, James, $1000 on October 17, 1890 for lot No. 2, 70 ¼ acres adjoining, Lot No, 3 on the south (book 25, p.102). On October 2, 1897 he sold the 70¼ acres to Mrs. Julia A. Robb (book 29, p.59). He continued to own and live on lot No. 3 until February 5, 1901 when he sold it to Sallie D. Street for $1350, the old Mason home had been in the Mason and Blincoe families since 1813.

After selling the farm Richard and his wife moved into Hawesville. There on November 13, 1910 Mary Crockett Mason died, she was buried in the Hawesville cemetery. The last years of his life Richard Mason lived at the homes of his two daughters in Hawesville. At the age of 79 he died on June 30, 1924 in Hawesville and was buried by his wife. The following articles appeared in the Hancock County and Owensboro newspapers following the deaths of Richard and Mary Mason:

Eli Wesley Pate, was born November 5, 1842. The greater part of his life was spent at his old homestead, where he was born and reared, in Hancock County, Ky. Farming was his principal pursuit. He was united in marriage to Miss Mary R. Mason, May 3, 1883. After his marriage he moved to Lewisport, Hancock County, Ky., where he engaged in dealing in leaf tobacco. He continued in the tobacco business three years and was unsuccessful. Then he entered into general merchandise business. This business, in connection with farming, engaged his attention until his death, which occurred March 21, 1894. His bearing was pleasing, possessing a pleasant and kindly face. Throughout the whole of his life he enjoyed the confidence and esteem of the people among whom he lived. He was honored for his honesty, benevolence and benignity. One who held a contempt for falsehood, abhorred deception and hypocrisy, and could not look on such acts with any degree of allowance. He was sought by the poor and oppressed for pecuniary aid and counsel; the worthy were not turned away without his assistance.

Eli W. Pate died March 21, 1894 and was buried in the Lewisport Cemetery. The following notice of his death was in the Owensboro newspaper:

Owensboro Daily Messenger, Owensboro, Ky., Thursday, 22 March 1894:

Death At Lewisport

Mr. Wesley Pate died at his home in Lewisport yesterday after a short illness of pneumonia. He was 52 years old. He was a brother-in-law to Mr. Gregory, of the revenue office in this city.

Mary Mason Pate received 27 acres, lot No, 3 in the division of her father's lands in 1885. Seven weeks later she sold it to her brother, Richard W. Mason (book 23, p.139). Eli W. and Mary Pate did not have any children. At the age of 52 Mary Mason Pate died on January 15, 1900. She was buried in the Mason-Blincoe Cemetery on the farm where she had been raised and lived most of her life.

Kate Mason, daughter of James M. Mason and Nancy M. Blincoe, was born April 1, 1849 in Hancock County, Ky. When she was 22 she married John William Myers on May 1, 1872. They were married at her father's house by Rev. William H. Dawson, of the Baptist church, witnesses to their marriage were Robert Beauchamp and James Robb.

John W. Myers was born in Indiana in 1849, he is not listed in the 1870 Hancock County census. His father a native of Ohio was deceased by 1880. At the time of the 1880 census of Hancock County John W. and Kate Myers were living with his mother, Mrs. Eliza A. Myers, a widow, a short distance from the Meson home. They were enumerated only three households from Kate's brothers and sisters that were still at home on the James Mason farm. Also living with the Myers was a younger brother of John W., Harvey L. Myers. He was born in 1862, he later married Mary M. Freeman and operated a drug store in Lewisport.

Kate Myers in the 1885 division of her father's lands received 76 acres, lot No. 8. Between 1898 and 1899 John and Kate Myers moved their family to Owensboro, Ky. The farm in Hancock County they rented until March 5, 1903 when they sold the 76 acres to George R. Crockett. They received $750 for the land, at the time of the sale the farm was, rented to a Mr. Dyer, who had paid $65 for the year.

From about 1900 until the time of her death in 1912 Kate Myers resided at 1327 West 2nd St. in Owensboro, Ky. The 1900 census of Daviess County and the Owensboro City directories list the occupation of her husband, John W. Myers, as that of a steamboat captain, in the city newspapers and in other records he is frequently referred to as Capt. Myers, By the 1910 census John W. Myers was employed in the Carriage Woodstock Co. in Owensboro, which was a manufacturer of horse drawn buggies, his position was that of a wood worker.

Kate Mason Myers died at her home in Owensboro on April 10, 1912, she was 63 years old. Her body was taken to Hancock County and interred in the Mason-Blincoe Cemetery, She was survived by her husband and four children, Paul, Richard, John, William and Mary. Six children preceded their mother in death. Hugh died at age of 8, Harvey at 9 months, James at 17, Allen at 8, Nellie at 24 and Lizzie at 21, all were buried in Hancock County at the Mason-Blincoe Cemetery. The following articles appeared in the Owensboro newspaper upon the deaths of Kate Mason Myers and her daughters, Nellie and Lizzie Myers:

Owensboro Messenger, Owensboro, Ky., Saturday, 13 April 1912:

A deed recorded in Daviess County, Ky. on February 25, 1933 lists the heirs of Maggie Mason Kelly, including the children of Kate Mason Myers. Maggie Kelly died in 1932 leaving no living descendants and when her property she owned in Daviess County was sold the proceeds were divided among her living brothers and sisters, and the children of her deceased brothers and sisters. At this time three of Kate Myers children were living: Richard W. Myers, age 48, was single and living in Flin Flon, Manitoba, Canada (located about 400 miles north of the state of North Dakota). John William Myers, Jr., age 42, wife Georgia Fern, was also living in Flin Flon, Mary wife of G. S. Moore, age 40, was living in San Antonio, Texas. Paul Myers who was living when his mother died in 1912 had died by 1933.

Robert Mason, son of James M. Mason and Nancy M. Blincoe, was born December 17, 1850 in Hancock County, Ky. He worked as a farmer. Following the deaths of his parents he continued to live on their farm. In the 1880 census of Hancock County he was the oldest son living at the James Mason home place near Falcon between Lewisport and Hawesville. He was listed as the head of the household, also living in the same home where his brothers and sisters: Mary R., 32; Thomas B., 23; H. W., 21; Nannie M., 17; Charles M., 15; V. E. Pierce, 36 (widow); and Willie M. Pierce, 17 (niece). When his sisters Maggie married in 1879, Mary in 1883 and Nannie in 1885, the Hancock County marriage register indicates they all married at the residence of Robert Mason, formerly the home of James and Nancy Blincoe Mason. In the division of James Mason's lands in October 1885 Robert Mason was granted 50 acres, lot no. 4. Six weeks later on December 12 he sold the lot to N. B. and Nannie Chambers for $1600.

When the 1900 Hancock County census was taken Robert Mason was living with his brother, James Munday Mason, who was renting a house in Hawesville. Robert was then age 49, and had never married, his occupation was listed as farm laborer. Robert Mason later left Hancock County and his relatives in Hancock County lost track of him, and his whereabouts and fate were later unknown. In the obituary of Richard W. Mason in 1924 three surviving brothers were listed one of whom was "Robert Mason, whose address is not known". When Maggie Mason Kelly died in 1932 and Henry W. Mason died in 1936 their brother, Robert Mason, was not given as a survivor. There was a Robert Mason who died in Scott County, Missouri on February 5, 1925; his death certificate reported he was born in Ky., was age 74, he was single and was a "county charge" and was buried at the "county cemetery".

Michael Angelo Mason, son of James M. Mason and Nancy M. Blincoe, was born January 15, 1853 in Hancock County, Ky. He studied law and became an attorney, practicing his profession in Hawesville, Ky. and Birmingham, Ala. At the age of 22 he took the oath as Hancock County deputy clerk (Order book 1872-1876, p.270). He served under James E. Stone clerk of the Hancock Circuit Court. Mr. Stone was prominent in the early history of Hancock County. A native of Hardin County, Ky. he was born February 23, 1808. On August 27, 1838 when Hancock County was only nine years old James E. Stone was appointed county court clerk, an office he held for about forty successive years, a record surpassed by no one in the history of the state. He served in the Kentucky House of Representatives, was one of the first school teachers of Hawesville, and was also a minister of the Baptist church. James E. Stone died May 21, 1885 and was buried in the Hawesville Cemetery.

Michael A. Mason on October 1, 1874 was granted a license to practice law in Hancock County and was admitted to the bar (Circuit court order book 11, p.254).

On October 29, 1879 Michael Mason married Sarah D. Taylor of Owensboro, Ky. They were married in Owensboro at the Walnut Street Baptist Church by Rev. John M. Peay. The following article in the Owensboro newspaper announced their marriage:

Owensboro Messenger, Owensboro, Ky., Wednesday, 5 November 1879:

They Twain Are One

An event which has been an interesting theme among friends for some time, took place at the Walnut St. Baptist Church Wednesday morning. It was the marriage of Mr. M.A. Mason, a prominent young lawyer, of Hawesville, and Miss Sallie Taylor, of this city, the spirited and popular daughter of Mr. John Taylor. At the hour of eight a number of friends were assembled to witness the ceremony, and the bridal couple preceded by Mr. and Mrs. John Moorman, entered the church and proceeded to the altar, where the Rev. J. M. Peay, sealed the contract, which made them one forever, by an impressive ceremony. The happy pair, amid the hearty congratulations of friends, left at once per train for Louisville and other points on a bridal tour, after which they are to return to Hawesville, where their future lots are cast.

Sallie D. Taylor was born February 7, 1859 to John Taylor and Fannie (Frances) E. Cobb. Her parents married in Ohio County, Ky. on November 13, 1856 and soon afterwards moved to Owensboro, Ky. where he operated a woolen mill. John Taylor was born July 31, 1818. Fannie E. Cobb, one of thirteen children of Warner Cobb and Sallie Haynes, was born April 19, 1829 in Ohio County, Ky. Warner Cobb was born July 30, 1781 and died June 5, 1870, Sallie Haynes Cobb was born May 13, 1788 and died September 23, 1866; both of their fathers, Jesse Cobb and Henry Haynes were natives of Virginia, the former served as a captain in the Revolution.

Sallie Mason's mother, Fannie E. Taylor, died at her daughter's residence in Hawesville on August 9, 1883, and her father, John Taylor, died on December 27, 1897, both were buried in the Hawesville Cemetery. Sallie Mason had two brothers, Edward W. Taylor (born c1857) and John M. D. Taylor (born c1860_).

Michael and Sallie Mason after their marriage resided at Hawesville. In the 1880 census of Hancock County they were boarding in the Canton Hotel in Hawesville, run by Oletha Carlton, another resident at the hotel was Michael's younger brother, James Munday Mason. In 1885 when his father's land was divided Michael Mason was allotted 66 acres, lot No. 6. On November 24, 1885 he sold 14 acres of the lot to N. B. and Nannie Chambers for $448. The remaining 52 acres he sold to Mary E. Stratton on April 6, 1894 for $600.

Michael Mason practiced law in Hawesville until he moved to Birmingham, Alabama in February of 1887. The following two notices appeared in the 1887 newspapers of Owensboro, Ky.

Owensboro Messenger, Owensboro, Ky., Saturday, 26 February 1887:

Mr. Mike Mason, of Hawesville, has moved to Birmingham, Ala., where he will practice his profession, the law.

Owensboro Messenger, Owensboro, Ky., Thursday, 20 October 1887:

Hawesville: Mr. M.A. Mason, formerly of this city but now of Birmingham, Ala., is very ill at the latter place.

On April 6, 1894 when Michael Mason sold part of the James Mason land he was still residing in Birmingham, Ala. In the next year (1895) on September 21 he died at the early age of 43 at his home in Birmingham, Al. Less than a year later his wife, Sallie, died on August 14, 1896 of consumption at her residence in Hawesville, she was only 37 years old. The following mention of her illness and notice of her death were in the Owensboro newspaper:

Owensboro Messenger, Owensboro, Ky., Sunday, 16 August 1896:

Hawesville, August 15 - Mrs. M. A. Mason is lying at the point of death in this city with consumption. Her recovery is improbable.

Owensboro Messenger, Owensboro, Ky., Friday, 21 August 1896:

Hawesville, August 20 - Mrs. Sallie Mason died at her home in this place Saturday of consumption. She had been ill for many years.

Michael A. and Sallie Mason were buried in the Hawesville Cemetery. Next to their graves is that of their baby daughter, Nannie B., who was born December 9, 1883 and died August 26, 1884. Four children were born to their marriage:

Evlyn Taylor ("Eva")	born	16 Feb 1881

Malcolm for several years lived with his uncle and aunt, N. B. and Nannie Mason Chambers at Hawesville. And Thornton lived for awhile with his uncle, Henry W. Mason, near Hawesville. By 1900 none of the children were still living in Hancock County, and by then were all probably living in Louisville, Ky., where they later resided. On June 15, 1906 a deed was recorded in Hancock County by which Eva, Malcolm and Thornton Mason, all unmarried and living in Louisville, Ky., sold two tracts of 29¼ and 6 acres on Lead Creek in Hancock County (book 34 p.516). The land had been owned by their father, Michael A. Mason, they sold the land to William C. Kelly for $300.

Eva Taylor Mason while a child lost an arm when she fell into a fire. She never married. For many years she was a teacher in Louisville, Ky., and became a principal of a school there. At the age of 75 she died on September 15, 1956 and was buried in Louisville at Cave Hill Cemetery.

Malcolm Mason resided in Louisville, Ky. He married Bess Anderson and had two children, Malcolm, Jr. and Elizabeth. Malcolm Mason, Jr. is presently living at BR 1, Box 36-1, Jamestown, Ky. 42629. Owensboro Messenger, Owensboro, Ky., Tuesday, 19 July 1932:

MRS. M. KELLEY SHOOTS SELF AT CHESTNUT GROVE

Had Been Despondent For Several Weeks As Result of Death of Her Daughter, Mrs. Harvey Estes

Mrs. Margaret Kelley, 78 years old, prominent resident of the Chestnut Grove community shot and killed herself early Monday morning at her home. Mrs. Kelley had been despondent since the death of her daughter, Mrs. Harvey Estes, three weeks ago. She had also been in ill health and was very feeble because of her advanced age.

Mrs. Nannie Chambers, a sister, who had been staying with Mrs. Kelley since the death of Mrs. Estes stated that Mrs. Kelley arose at 5 o'clock Monday morning, dressed, and left the house. A short while later she heard a shot and upon looking out of the door, saw Mrs. Kelley fall out of one of the outbuildings. She was dead when members of the family reached her side. A bottle of carbolic acid, part of which had been poured into a cup was on the floor of the building. Mrs. Kelley was unfamiliar with the use of a pistol, and only Sunday had asked Mr. Estes how to operate one saying that she was afraid of intruders, as she had to stay at the house alone so much, since the death of her daughter.

A verdict of suicide was returned at an inquest, conducted by Coroner Delbert Glenn, of Owensboro. Mrs. Kelley was the widow of Joseph Kelley. Surviving are a sister Mrs. N. M. Chambers, of Springfield, Ill., and a brother, Henry Mason, of Hawesville.

Funeral services will be held at the Chestnut Grove Baptist Church at 3 o'clock this afternoon with the Rev. William Norrington in charge. Burial will be in Iron Ore Mill Cemetery.

Hancock Clarion, Hawesville, Ky., Friday, 22 July 1932:

MRS. MARGARET KELLY ENDS LIFE WITH PISTOL

Mrs. Margaret Kelly, age 78 years, a highly respected lady of the Chestnut Grove community (Daviness County), formerly of this county, ended her life at an early hour Monday morning, when she sent a bullet from a pistol crashing through her head.

Since the death of her husband, the late Joseph Kelly, she has made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Harvey Estes. About three weeks ago, Mrs. Estes, who was her only child, died. Since that time she has been despondent. She had been in failing health for the past year, and at the time of the death of her daughter, her life was dispaired of. Her sister, Mrs. N. B. Chambers, of Owensboro, had been with her since the death of her daughter.

On Sunday, before she took her life, she got hold of a gun and asked her son-in-law, Mr. Harvey Estes, to show her how to use it, saying that since her daughter was gone, she would necessarily be alone a good portion of the time and was afraid of tramps. Thinking that he was humoring her fancy. Mr. Estes told her something about pulling the trigger. She arose rather early Monday morning and left the bed room. A few minutes later, Mrs. Chambers heard a shot and rushed out in time to see her stagger and fell. She quickly summoned help, but by the time she was carried into the house, she had breathed her last.

Mrs. Kelly was widely known and enjoyed the love and respect of her acquaintances. The affair cast a gloom over the community.

She is survived by one sister, Mrs. N. B. Chambers of Owensboro, and one brother, Attorney Henry Mason, of this county.

The funeral services were conducted at the Chestnut Grove Baptist Church, Tuesday afternoon by Rev. Will Norrington, followed by interment in the Iron Ore Hill cemetery.

Margaret Mason Kelly died intestate and at her death she owned 45 ½ acres on the Yelvington Road, in Daviess County, deeded to her April 22, 1905 (Daviess County deed book 79, p.57), less one acre deeded to Chestnut Grove School District. On February 25, 1933 her heirs sold this land to J. M. Pool for $750 (Daviess County deed book 129, p.571). The grantors as recorded in this deed were: Henry Mason and wife Mattie, Rt. 1 Hawesville, Ky.; Margaret Hodges & husband P. H., Hawesville, Ky.; Emma R. Lambert & husband J. S., San Antonio, Texas; Nannie Chambers, a widow, Springfield, Ill.; Maud Culp, a widow, Evansville, Ind.; George C. Mason & wife Edith, Evansville, Ind. Accompanying the deed was an "Affidavit of Descent" establishing each of the heirs relationship to the decedent, M. H. Kelly, and their interest in her estate. The following affidavit was subscribed and sworn to by Henry Mason on April 27, 1933 and recorded May 17, 1933:

The following biography of James C. Robb was published in the book, Kentucky: A History of the State (J. H. Battle, W. H. Perrin & G. C. Kniffin, 1885):

J. C. Robb, farmer and stock raiser, residence three three miles northeast of Hawesville, Hancock County, was born in Jessamine County, Ky., October 23, 1826, son of Frederick and Mary (Neet) Robb. Mr. Robb's paternal ancestors were among the early pioneers of Jessamine County, settling about five miles of Nicholasville, where the grandfather died a great many years ago. Frederick Robb was born in the state of Maryland, but was taken to Kentucky when a mere boy, and resided in Jessamine County until 1827, at which time he moved to Frankfort, where his death occurred in 1861. Subject's maternal ancestors were of German descent and among the early settlers of Maryland. Mary Neet was born in the latter State; she was married to Frederick Robb in Jessamine County, Ky., and died about 1858 or 1859. The subject of this sketch is the third of a family of eleven children, eight of whom are living. He was reared a farmer and received his education in the schools of Franklin County, where he resided until 1867. In 1861 he entered the Confederate army, enlisting in Company K, Ninth Kentucky Regiment, under command of Col. Thomas Hunt, with which he served until 1864. He participated in a number of hard fought battles, among which were Missionary Ridge, Jonesboro, Murfreesboro, Chickamauga and others. In 1864 he was transferred to the Fifth Kentucky, with which he served until the latter part of the same year, when he was mustered out of service. After leaving the army he returned to Franklin County, Ky., where he remained until 1867., at which time he moved to Hancock County, and in February, of the same year, was married to Mrs. Julia A. Barr, daughter of Robert C. and Ann Beauchamp. The following children have been born to this union: William, Martha, James, Anna B., and Katie (deceased). Mr. Robb is one of the leading farmers of Hancock County, and one of its most substantial citizens. He belongs to the I.O.O.F., and is an active member of the Presbyterian- and his wife of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Mattie Mason's mother, Julia Ann, was one of seven children of Robert Costin Beauchamp and Sarah Ann B. Stowers. The Beauchamps were of French descent and early settlers of Kentucky. Her great-great-grandfather, Jesse Beauchamp, came from France to this country in the time of the French Revolution being driven from that country on account of religious persecution. His son, William Beauchamp, was a native of Delaware, and a soldier in the Revolution. He married Salle Morris and as early as 1790 came to Kentucky, settling in Bourbon County. In 1818 he came to Daviess County and settled near where the present village of Yelvington is now situated, and there he died in about 1830. Robert C. Beauchamp, son of William, was born in the fort at Georgetown, Harrison County, Ky., in 1800. He grew to manhood in Daviess County and in 1827 moved to Hancock County. He settled on a 160 acre farm, the center of which is the old Beauchamp house that still stands three miles west of Hawesville on Highway 60. The home, built in 1842, became the center of a "village", complete with brick furnaces, blacksmith shop, dairy, looms, livestock and produce; supporting the family and approximately 90 slaves. R.C. Beauchamp represented Hancock County in the Kentucky Legislature in 1867-68 and 1870-71. His marriage to Ann Stowers on August 20, 1830 was the sixteenth recorded in Hancock County. His wife was born in Jefferson County, Ky., September 9, 1811. She was the daughter of John Stowers, an early resident of what is now Hancock County, his death occurred in 1826. R. C. Beauchamp died in Hancock County on September 9, 1884 at the advanced age of 84.

Henry Mason received 41 acres, lot No. 7, in the division of his father's estate in 1885. On September 28, 1891 he sold it to N. B. and Nannie Chambers. In 1899 Henry Mason took his family to reside in Evansville, Ind., at the time his sister, Vutura Pierce, and an uncle, William M. Blincoe, were living in Evansville. In Evansville in 1900 a son, Robb, was born. In the Hancock County newspaper in 1901 the following reference was made to the family of Henry Mason living in Evansville:

Hancock Clarion, Hawesville, Ky., Saturday, 7 September 1901:

Mrs. Henry Mason and children will return to their home in Evansville tomorrow after spending the summer with her mother, Mrs. J. C. Robb.

Sometime between September 1901 and the birth of their daughter, Julia, in April 1903 Henry Mason moved back to Hancock County. From the J. C. Robb estate Henry and Mattie received land that was situated about a mile N.W. of Hawesville. On this property they made their home. Located on the Tell City Landing Road (Highway 271) across from the NSA plant, the house in which they lived was in recent years sold by Robb and Julia Mason and was torn down a little more than a year ago (circa 1985).

Henry W. Mason died August 24, 1936 at his home near Hawesville. He was 77 years old. His wife, Mattie, at the age of 93, died on November 25, 1964. They and all four of their children were buried in the Hawesville Cemetery. Henry born April 11, 1897 and died at the age of 8 months on December 13, 1897. She and her husband made their home at Anchorage, Ky. near Louisville, they did not have any children, she died March 18, 1967 in Louisville, Ky. James "Robb" Mason was born October 22, 1900, while the family was residing in Evansville, Ind. He never married, for a number of years he was employed by the Ford Motor Co. in Detroit, after retiring he lived in Hancock County, At the age of 82 he died on November 30, 1982 in Owensboro, Ky. W. & Letitia Chambers) received a letter from Ireland trying to locate heirs of a Lord Dillon, who had died leaving a fortune. Their dad wanted to make the journey to Ireland but their mother for fear of his safety would not let him go." Dr. Chambers was named after the alleged relationship to Lord Dillon.

In the Revenue Service's Owensboro office he served 16 years as deputy collector of internal revenue. Though no longer in political office N.W. He was a native of Hawesville, but had lived in Akron for many years, and was a veteran of World War I.

Charles M. Mason, the youngest child of James M. Mason and Nancy M. Blincoe, was born August 3, 1864 in Hancock County, Ky. He became both a licensed doctor and lawyer. He left his native county in early adulthood and family members lost track of him and little is known of his life. It is believed he never married.

Charles Mason was only 9 years old when his mother died and 13 when his father died. At the age of 15 when the 1880 census of Hancock County was taken he was still living at the Mason home place with his older brothers and sisters. In the division of his father's lands in 1885 he was granted 70 acres, lot No. 10 and on December 18, 1889 he sold it to Jasper Newton Tongate for $800, at that time he was still residing in Hancock County.

On March 16, 1891 Charles M. Mason was granted a license to practice medicine in Hancock County. His license was recorded on page 19 in the Hancock County Medical Register. On the license the following information was recorded:

Mason, Charles M., age 26, born Hancock County, Ky. Education: Diploma from University of Louisville, Louisville, Ky. on 28th February 1890. He belongs to the Alopotic School of Medicine. Sworn before B. N. Poindexter, C.H.C.C, this 16th March 1891.

Less than two months later he was granted a license to practice law and was admitted to the bar in Hancock County, on May 8, 1891 (Hancock County Circuit Court order book 18, p.514). He was the second in his family to become a doctor and the third to become a lawyer.

Sometime between the years 1891 and 1900 Charles M. Mason left Hancock County, Ky. Clayton Keith in the book Sketch of the Jackson Family in America (1916, New Power Print, Louisiana, Missouri) recorded some information on the descendants of John Henderson Mason and Elizabeth Jackson, and in listing the children of their son, James, he wrote; "Charley practicing law in Northern Missouri in 1900", On March 15, 1910 Charles M. Mason wrote a letter to his sister, Veturia Pierce, of Evansville, Ind., not knowing she had died two months previously, the letter was sent from Los Angeles, California.. In 1918 when his brother, James Munday Mason, died he was not listed as a surviving brother in his obituary, if he was living at that time no one in the family evidently knew where he was living. In the 1924 obituary of his brother, Richard W. Mason, among the survivors was listed "Charles Mason of Missouri", On April 27, 1933 when his brother, Henry W. Mason, drew up and recorded an "Affidavit of Descent" in Daviess County, Ky., proving the heirs of Maggie Mason Kelly, deceased, among the heirs listed were: "Charlie Mason, age 69, address unknown, relationship to decedent - brother" (Daviess County deed book 127, p.571). The affidavit was accompanied by a deed whereby the heirs of Maggie Mason Kelly sold land she had owned at the time of her death, in the deed the following reference was made to Charles M. Mason:

The said M. H. Kelly died intestate, in Daviess County, Ky., and left the parties of the first part herein as her only heirs at law, except one brother, Charles Mason, who left his home in the state of Ky., many years ago and has not been heard from by any of his relatives for over twenty-five years.

Charles M. Mason, of James M. Mason and Nancy M. Blincoe, died in Los Angeles County, CA on January 6, 1949. His death certificate gives his birth date as August 3, 1864 Ky. He appears in the 1940 census of the city of Los Angeles – he was reported to be 75, single, and born Kentucky.

Aaron W. Harris was born about 1818 in Nelson County, Ky. In childhood he came with his parents, Benjamin' Harris and Innocent Ann Wight, to Union County. His parents had married in Nelson County on March 13, 1810. The History of Union County, Ky. written in 1886 contained the following information on the Harris family:

Benjamin Harris (Deceased), one of the substantial men who broke the wilderness in Union County, was the son of Aaron Harris, who was from Ireland.

Benjamin was born n Nelson County about the year 1787, and was married there to Innocent Ann Wight, the daughter of Iloff and Mary Wight. Mr. Harris came to Union County in 1827. He had some twelve or thirteen slaves, and he rented land and worked it with his slaves. He had a good common school training, and had a large family of children, who have been a credit to the county, and all of whom, except Martha (who died single), married and raised families. Columbus married Elizabeth Pratt, and had eleven children, three of whom are dead; Theopholus, a carpenter of Bardstown, married Elizabeth Curry, and had two children, One of whom is dead; Wm Truman married Virginia Pratt and had fourteen children, five of whom are dead; Aaron was first married to Zero Jones and afterward to Margaret Mason, and had four children, one of whom is dead; Joseph Louis married Matilda Richards, and had four children, who are all dead; Mary married Joseph Waller, and had eight children, three of whom are dead; Nancy married John Waller, and had two children. Fielding Jones was a soldier of the second war with Great Britain and was present at the Thames, when Tecumseh was killed. He attained the rank of colonel, for his service Virginia granted him 1000 acres in what is now Union County, Ky. He was born 1756 in Henry County, Va., in 1779 he married Sarah Hardin. He was in Union County as early as 1779 and is the first white man that any authentic accounts say ever settled within her bounds. In 1790 he established his home on his military grant, which was located on what is now the Spring Grove-Uniontown Road, about five miles west of Morganfield. He served as sheriff of what is now Henderson, Hopkins and Union Counties before they were divided, was one of the first magistrates of Union County, and was surveyor of Union County until his death in 1832. Both he and his wife are buried in the Reburn burying ground in the Antioch community west of Morganfield. Eleven years after their marriage Aaron Harris died on September 13, 1868, he was about 50 years old. He was buried by his first wife and her parents in the Reburn Cemetery.

Following their marriage Mag and Aaron Harris lived near her brother, Joseph A. Mason, in the Morganfield Precinct. In the 1860 Union County census they were enumerated only two households from the Joseph A. Mason family (p.326 of microfilm of 1860 Union County census). Following the death of her husband Mag Harris lived near Raleigh in the Raleigh Precinct, where she was residing at the time of the 1870 (p.356) and 1880 (p.568) censuses of Union-County. By 1900 she moved back to the Antioch community in the Morganfield Precinct, where she is listed when the 1900 (p.19b) and 1910 (p.6) censuses of Union County were taken.

Margaret Mason Harris was a member of the Methodist church. Dr. Dillon W. Chambers of Owensboro, Ky., remembers his great-aunt, Mag Harris, of Morganfield coming to Owensboro about 1910 to attend a Methodist conference at Settle Memorial Church. While in Owensboro she stayed at the home of his parents, N. B. and Nannie Mason Chambers. His grandfather, James M. Mason, was a brother of Mag Harris.

Margaret Mason Harris never remarried and lived fifty-two years as a widow. At the age of 89 she died on January 8, 1921.
