

Lost Daviess County Will Books

By Jerry Long
c.2025

The first extant will book for Daviess County, Kentucky is labeled “Will Book A & B”. It replaced Daviess County Will Books A and B that were lost. The 1883 History of Daviess County, Kentucky records that copies of the county’s “wills prior to 1867 were lost or destroyed.” Subsequent to the disappearance of the books the public was invited to bring in and re-record any wills that were among those that had been lost. The lost wills were collected over a period of time and then all that had been collected were re-recorded at the 10th June 1867 session of the Daviess County Court. Those that were re-recorded were included in “Will Book A & B.” All of the wills in Will Book A & B were accompanied by the notation: “The book containing the foregoing will having been destroyed it is ordered that the same be re-recorded. Witness my hand this 10th June 1867, T. C. Jones, Clk.”

One other major records group at the Daviess County Courthouse – Settlement Books A and B, covering the years of 1848-1864, are also missing. County histories do not document how the county’s first two will books and first two settlement books, came to be lost or destroyed. One possible theory is that they were lost when the Daviess County Courthouse was burned by Confederate guerillas during the Civil War on 4 January 1865. In relating the history of this event the History of Daviess County, Kentucky states that the records were “mostly saved” (1883, p.175). Any itemized listing of any records that were lost on this occasion has not been preserved. The two year period transpiring between the burning of the Courthouse and the re-recording of the collected lost wills on 10th June 1867 gives credence to the theory that these county records were destroyed at the time of the burning of the Courthouse. Also the use of the phrase “foregoing will having been destroyed” at the time when the wills were re-recorded contributes more evidence to this possibility.

The following references to the Daviess County will books appeared in the History of Daviess County, Kentucky (Chicago, IL: Inter-State Publishing Co., May 1883) pp.296-298:

LOST RECORDS

The volumes in the county clerk's office, containing copies of wills prior to 1867, were lost or destroyed; and the originals of many were afterward brought forward and recorded. Since that date the record is complete.
